ROBBERS DISARM
POLICEMAN, GET $7212
PAYROLL FROM OFFICE

Three Young Men Effect Daring Robbery in Office of F. C. Church Shoe Co. at 2801 Benton Street at 1:35 P. M.—Shot First Fired Into Floor to Cause Confusion—Escape in Hudson Touring Car.

Three young men, with revolvers in their hands, marched into the office of the F. C. Church Shoe Co., 2801 Benton street, at 1:35 p. m., today, as the cashier was counting over $7212 payroll money. A policeman stood by the cashier's desk, having just guarded him on a taxicab ride from the Boatmen's Bank.

"Shoot!" cried one of the men, and a shot was fired which went through the floor and which threw the office into confusion. The men turned their revolvers on the cashier and the policeman, and one of them took the policeman's revolver. They seized all the money and escaped in a Hudson touring car.

The policeman, John Fitzgibbon, of the Dayton street station, 53 years old, has been assigned every Tuesday to accompany the Church company's cashier, Alphonse Heikamp, from the bank to the office. The driver of the taxicab in which they made the trip today, had not left the building and was telephoning for instructions when the robbers entered. He as ordered by one of the robbers to stay in the building and to make no attempt to follow them. The robbers' car, which had a worn appearance, entered on Benton street.

Several Girls in Office.
A number of young women were in the company's outer office as the robbers entered. Otto Nelson, a bookkeeper, was in the office with the cashier. The establishment has 275 employees.

One of the young men, the police were informed, had a handkerchief tied over his mouth. The others were not masked.

When they first went to the cashier's desk, one of the robbers started to pick up the empty envelopes in which Heikamp was preparing to put the payroll money. Another robber, it is stated, then emptied the desk and the money was carried in a bag in which it had been carried from the bank.

License Number Obtained.
Miss Ruth Beatty, a clerk in the outside office, gave the police what she said was the number of the license of the robbers' car. The police found that this license was the license number of an automobile reported stolen May 2 from James Sinns, 4027 Peck street.

Officers of the company stated to the police that the payroll money was insured.

Bookings to Build Near By.
The immediate grounds surrounding the home comprise three and one-half acres and adjoin approximately 50 acres, known as Brookings Park, which also is the property of the university. It is the intention of Brookings to construct a residence for himself on these grounds at some future date.

The new Chancellor's home is of the Georgian colonial type, the center of which is two long one-story wings. The central portion is given over to a large living room, approximately 25 ft. by 30 ft.

St. Louis, entered from a large rectangular Italian hall, fitted with bookshelves and a large fireplace.

The east wing has a long gallery, which Brookings has used for the display of his works of art. Opening off this gallery to the south are the living and sleeping rooms and the study.

The west wing during this summer has been used for study and sleeping quarters. The west wing is given over to the study and sleeping quarters.

GOVERNOR SELLS GASOLINE
FROM TRUCK TO COMPEL
PRICE CUT IN SOUTH DAKOTA

By the Associated Press.
RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 25.—

GOV. N. J. McMillan, of South Dakota, today sold gasoline from a State highway truck near here yesterday when local filling stations ignored his ultimatum to reduce their price from 20 to 18 cents or he would sell motor fuel at 16 cents.

Two hours of such competition were sufficient for several of the dealers, who dropped their price to 18 cents. But others proved recalcitrant, holding out for 20 cents, and the Governor continued his price war.

ZR-1 SCHEDULED TO START
SUNDAY FOR ST. LOUIS

Craft Probably Will Be Here Monday—Will Cover Two Routes on Trip.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 25.—

That the giant dirigible ZR-1 would make the flight to St. Louis to be present at the Pulitzer trophy race at the air meet beginning Oct. 1, was definitely announced today by Commander Ralph F. Weyerbacher, in charge of construction.

Weather permitting, the dirigible of the air will depart Sunday afternoon, arriving in St. Louis early Monday morning, in time for the opening of the race. The flight will take the dirigible over Pennsylvania, Southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

If the weather is unfavorable to flight conditions Sunday, the ZR-1 will make the flight Monday or Tuesday. It is certain, therefore, that the giant dirigible will be at St. Louis for at least one of the three days of the meet. The return trip will be made by way of Chicago and Detroit, thus giving the people of the Middle West the opportunity of seeing the latest achievement of American engineering genius in action.

The ZR-1 will next leave her hangar Thursday, when she will take the air for a trial flight to last day. This flight will be in the nature of speed tests in which the dirigible will be put through her best paces. It is planned in the course of the tests to fly the ship to the New Jersey State Fair at Trenton.

Health Gradually Declined.
His death yesterday, at a private home in Overland, St. Louis County, followed a gradual decline of several months.

"The Old Man" was Filley's political title from the days when he was not more than a middle-aged man. His white beard and ruddy cheeks, set off by the curious conical hat which he wore, were striking details of his appearance, which only extreme age changed. Even the hat which he last wore had modified its odd shape somewhat.

Thirty years ago the Filley hat, reproduced by the hundreds and sold chiefly to city employees, was the prevailing headgear at the city hall, and was worn at national and State Republican conventions. No less famous than the Filley hat was "The Old Man's" slogan, usually the first sentence of his speeches. This was:

"AND THEY KNOW IT."

Had Party Opponents.
These sentences referred sometimes to the Democrats, who dominated the State throughout Filley's active career; sometimes to his opponents within the Republican party, who controlled the City of St. Louis through a considerable part of the same period.

Of his many quarrels with rival leaders in city and State politics, the bitterest was his long enmity with the late Richard C. Kerens, who was national committeeman for a part of the time that Filley headed the State committee, and who, though failing of his senatorial ambition, was made Ambassador to Austria-Hungary by President Taft. Kerens and the Kerens following were the subjects of long screeds written by Filley upon his ancient and rickety typewriter.

Filley's "dynamic chest," as he termed it, was an old clock in which he kept newspaper clippings, affidavits and other matter pertaining to his enemies. He has frequently said that he intended to leave his vast mass of historical and semi-historical matter to the Missouri Historical Society. Whether he left much else, could not be learned today. It was his boast in past years that, though in politics all his life, he was not rich.

Filley, who was born Oct. 17, 1829, died no immediate descendants. Outliving all the political contemporaries of his early days, he had long been the only survivor of the convention which abolished slavery in Missouri.

Ups and Downs of Filley and G. O. P., as Told on "Old Man's" Typewriter

FILLEY came to St. Louis in September, 1850, from his boyhood home in Lansingburg, N. Y.

The latter part of his journey was made by water from Cincinnati, and he landed on what he came here from Cairo landed in what was known as the "unimproved section" south of Olive street.

St. Louis then had a population of less than 75,000. When Filley married, five years later, he and his wife went to house.

CHAUNCEY I. FILLEY, 1863 MAYOR, TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

Death of Former Republican Leader at 94 Ends One of Longest Political Careers in America.

"THE OLD MAN" WAS HIS TITLE FOR YEARS

"Filley Hat" 30 Years Ago Was Prevailing Headgear at City Hall and at Party Conventions.

The funeral of Chauncey Ives Filley, former Republican city and State leader, whose death, at almost 94 years of age, has ended one of the longest careers in the history of American party politics, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at his home, 4169 Westminster place. Burial will be in Bellefontaine cemetery.

Filley, who was Mayor of St. Louis in 1863, and was Postmaster 16 years later, made several public appearances in recent years with the surviving former Mayors, on such occasions as the annual police review. The funeral announcement made this morning did not provide for any civic participation. The pallbearers selected, all relatives, are H. H. Langenberg, C. W. Moore, James Wear, Thomas McPheters, Ralph Simpkins, T. T. Richards and Oliver F. Richards.

Oklahoma Governor Asserts He Will Prevent Session of House Tomorrow, Even by "Shooting to Kill."

Rumors That Executive Was Weakening Set at Rest—Adjutant-General Tolds to Disperse Assembly.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 25.—

Conscription and "shoot to kill" are the military orders issued by Gov. Walton in preparation for the meeting of Oklahoma legislators when they attempt to convene in an impeachment session at noon tomorrow, in defiance of the Governor's prohibition.

The order issued to Adjutant-General Markham was based on the premise that the Ku Klux Klan is attempting to supersede the legally constituted government of the State and that the call for a session of the House of Representatives is for the purpose of aiding the Klan in its fight with the Governor.

In a supplemental verbal statement, the Governor said he intended to prevent the convening of the House by the use of military force, "if necessary, to shoot to kill."

The order set at rest rumors that the Governor was weakening and was being brought by his advisers to a willingness to submit the controversy over the right of the House to assemble to whatever the courts decided.

ALL EUROPEANS
CAMERAS TO SKY

Aid of Everybody Sought in Making Gigantic Composite Cloud Map Picture.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Sept. 25.—During the present week all the peoples of Europe have been asked to turn their cameras skyward for the sake of the science of meteorology. They are to mark the locality and the time and to send the photographs to the foreign offices of their own Governments to be forwarded to Paris, as agreed upon at the recent scientific congress at Utrecht.

During the next six months Paris scientists will combine these photographs into a gigantic map showing every cloud in the European skies this week—weather clouds, not war ones. Meteorologists expect thereby to be able to establish important theories in the relation of cloud behavior and the weather.

COMBINED MORNING PAPERS
IN NEW YORK DOUBLED IN SIZE

Publishers Refuse to Hire Strikers Unless They Get Card From International Union.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Despite the fact that New York newspaper publishers refused to take back their striking pressmen unless full terms of an agreement signed with the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union were met, the combined morning newspapers, issued since the strike began a week ago, were doubled in size today.

Each paper was ordered to return to work was conditional. Formerly visited the publishers, it was stated, and said they would bring their cards back under the provision of the agreement with the international union, provided they were not compelled to recognize George Berry of the organization. They also said they would not recognize David Simons, head of Local Web Pressmen's Union No. 23, which had its charter revoked by Mr. Berry. The publishers, however, refused, telling the men they must recognize the international union and obtain cards from it.

13-TON BOAT SURVIVES 11-DAY
FIGHT AGAINST BERING SEA GALE

U. S. Geological Survey Party Has Perilous Experience Trying to Get Out of Arctic.

By the Associated Press.
NOME, Alaska, Sept. 25.—A story of an 11-day struggle against towering seas lashed by a Bering Sea gale was told by members of the U. S. Geological Survey party from Point Barrow who arrived at Teller on the 13-ton schooner Teddy Bear.

The Teddy Bear commanded by Capt. Joe Bernard, was driven from Point Hope, north of Kotzebue Sound, to St. Lawrence Island, opposite Nome, thence to Sledge Island and thence back through Bering Strait to Shismaref Inlet, a distance of 500 miles, before the storm subsided enough for the vessel to proceed on her regular course.

Capt. Bernard was on deck most of the time during the 11 days' fight and only his seamanship and knowledge of the northern waters enabled the little schooner to win through, according to the passengers.

TESTIFY KLANSMEN BEAT MAN AFTER ATTENDING CHURCH

Witnesses Before Military Court in Oklahoma Tell How Married Man Was Seized and Mistreated.

WIFE ASSERTS HIS HEALTH WAS BROKEN

His Back Mass of Bruises,
She Says—Struck 25 Times With What He Believed Was Harness Tug.

By the Associated Press.
TULSA, Ok., Sept. 25.—The whipping of Norman Chesher, a young married man of Mounds, Tulsa County,
by masked men, who, 15 minutes
before, had attended church services at Mounds in a body, was described in testimony before the military court of inquiry here, made public
by an officer of the tribunal.

Mrs. Chesher, wife of the victim, testified she did not witness the abduction, but learned of his experience "when he returned home late at night with his clothes torn and his back a mass of bruises." She said he did not identify any of his assailants.

"His health was broken by the flogging and other mistreatment he received that night," she said. "He never has been well since and now is in Hot Springs, Ark., under a doctor's care. He told me that he had been hit about 25 times with what he thought to be a harness tug. The men accused him of not supporting his widowed mother, of carrying a gun and of selling whiskey."

"He told them his mother died
when he was 3 years old, that he had never carried a gun or sold whiskey.
Then they told him they would whip
him on general principles."

Victim Kidnaped in Street.
Herbert Ellbro, Mounds business man and another witness, was near the church when Chesher was kidnaped, having been drawn there "by an announcement earlier in the day
that the Ku Klux Klan would visit the church." He said he saw about 25 figures, all wearing white robes and masks, marching down the street toward the church.

"A moment after they entered," he said, "a large touring car, with speeding down the street, turned around and dashed past my car,
drawing up to the curb directly across the street from the church.
Two men jumped out, grabbed Chesher, shoved him into the back seat, jumped inside themselves and the car was driven rapidly south.
When it passed me I saw five occupants, all disguised by tall black caps."

"About that time, masked men began to come out of the church. They entered automobiles and followed the one that contained Chesher."

Two other witnesses are said to have given similar testimony.

Farmer Told of Flogging.
William L. Perry, a farmer near whose place the whipping was administered, told of having been with in 150 feet of the scene while the lash was being applied.

"I heard them say 'we are going to teach you how to live a better life,'" he testified. "I was about as far as from here across the street when they took the fellow out of the car."
The witness added that he had heard one of the floggers admonish
the victim: "Put this in the paper,
and if you have any friends that are crooks tell them to leave town."

"USE BULLETS ON LEGISLATORS IF NECESSARY" WALTON

ing the power of the Governor to conscript men and legal views were offered on both sides of the question, as they have been on all of the many problems the Governor's orders and statements have presented.

Anti-Walton leaders were disposed to minimize the conscription section of the order.

"No citizens will be conscripted,"
one prominent citizen of Oklahoma
said. "That section is simply a cloak under which Walton will bring in his gunmen from all parts of the State and attempt to strike terror into the hearts of all of those who do not bow to his will."

After reading the Governor's military order, Representative McBee of Duncan, leader in the movement to convene the House, said he had no statement to make.

"We will maintain silence and we will meet," he said. "Further than that I have nothing to say."

Until the issuance of the order, the Oklahoma military situation for several days had assumed a quiet aspect,
and even now it may be said that the order pictures a much more serious situation than is likely to come about,
because there is no intention on the part of the handful of legislators to engage in a gun battle with the National Guard and the State police.
Likewise, it is doubtful that an order to fire upon the legislators would be issued by the officers in command of the guard.

"Gunmen" Constitute a Problem.
There is too much of a legal question of the right of the Governor to declare military rule for the officers to run afoul of the Oklahoma law un-

Residence Given to Washington University and Its Donor

der which they are personally responsible for illegal commands and acts.

However, there is the force of State police to be reckoned with. Many of them are men who grew up in the wild days of the early Oklahoma,
when most of the law was the law
they made with their pistols, and they are men who can shoot straight.
Some of them are "two-gun men,"
men with a reputation for shooting
first and reaching the conclusion as to whether they are right or wrong afterward.

Still asserting their intention to convene and in some manner get the question of their right to meet into the courts for adjudication, the Legislators insist they will offer no violence and that there will be no occasion for the use of force by the military. Apparently it is their intention to try to circumvent the Governor, the military and the police. It is to be assumed that they have a definite plan, but if they have they have not permitted it to leak out.

Bloodshed Remote Possibility.
There are among the Legislators
a number of men with reputations
equal to those of the men comprising the State police, quiet men who are in check if they believe their rights are being trampled upon, but the probabilities are that there will be no bloodshed and that when the legislators reach the Capitol and are convinced that the militia and the police are determined to prevent the assembly that they will disperse quietly.

It will then be in order for them
to attempt a gathering elsewhere
and remain in session long enough to organize before they are discovered. They believe that if they are once organized they can create the situation which will take the whole question into the courts.

This possibility brings up the question whether the Governor will use the military forces to prevent the State courts from hearing a case involving his right to declare military law. When the correspondent put the question to him last night, he hesitated, was about to answer directly, and then said: "We will not attempt to meet that situation until it arises."

Welcomed Federal Intervention.
In response to another question,
he said: "There, of course, would be no resistance to the Federal courts. If the Federal Government gets into this, it will be a matter for the Federal Government to handle.
I would be glad to unload it from my shoulders, but that can't be unless the Federal Government does step in."

He said he had not laid the situation before the Attorney-General of the United States, nor had he attempted in any manner to open negotiations with Washington regarding the Klan situation in Oklahoma.

Jewett, "grand dragon" of the Ku Klux Klan for Oklahoma, charged with participation in a flogging outrage in Oklahoma City last March,

Freeling, former Attorney-General, representing Jewett, asked for the continuance on the ground that he was engaged in the trial of another case.

Jewett is anxious to go to trial, he said, and "I will state to the court that on Oct. 9 we will put on the whole case, there will be no waiving of preliminary hearing." It is the understanding that Freeling will issue a subpoena for Gov. Walton to testify at the hearing.

Denies 90 Per Cent of Guardsmen
Are Members of the Klan.

By the Associated Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 25.—
Gov. Walton characterizes as untrue the statement of Representative
G. S. Long of Tulsa, that 90 per cent of the men in the Oklahoma Guard
are members of the Ku Klux Klan.

He declined to comment further.
While the court was in session, he was speaking informally to newsmen. In emphasizing what he termed the absurdity of the Government's charges that the proposed session of the House Wednesday was instigated by the Ku Klux Klan, the Governor declared that it was just as ridiculous to say that N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma realm
of the Klan, could stop martial law
by calling out Klan members of the guard as to say that the grand dragon could call the Legislature.

"Although I believe that at least 90 per cent of the guardsmen are members of the Ku Klux Klan,"

he said, "I believe that at least 90 per cent of the guardsmen are
members of the Ku Klux Klan,"

he said, "I believe that at least 90 per cent of the guardsmen are
members of the Ku Klux Klan,"

Long declared in a later statement
"they will, of course, be loyal to the last man, to the State Government, because that is what their oath to the Klan provides."

"Neither N. C. Jewett or any other officer of the Klan has the power or authority to command or influence the vote or action of any members of the Klan. It is the same as any other fraternal organization and if I thought there was anything in the Klan which made it a super-government I would be perfectly willing to take my own gun and help to disperse it. I know that is not true."

Representative Long added that had the Governor's fight against the organization not started, he believed the mask would have been abolished
in the Klan long ago.

Tells How He Watched Klan Till He Found Alleged Leader of Floggers.
By the Associated Press. 25.—How he stood in a darkened hallway, near the hall in which the Ku Klux Klan held meetings every night for weeks and watched the members of the Klan going to and from the hall,
was related here today by W. O.
Barnett, harness manufacturer who was flogged by a band of men on Feb. 17. The story was told in City Court where Dr. J. A. Yarbrough, established, is on trial charged with rioting in connection with the flogging of Barnett.

Barnett told how a man called him from his place of business the night of Feb. 12, telling him that one of his children had been struck by an automobile. He went with the man and got into an automobile
in which were two other men, he said. He declared that Dr. Yarbrough was in this party.

The men grabbed him, Barnett
said, and put handcuffs on him.
After reading charges that he had failed to provide for his family and had beaten his children, they whipped him. He asserted that Dr.
Yarbrough was the man who wielded
the lash.

A cross-examination of Dr.
Barnett told of his hunt for the "floggers." He said that he watched the Ku Klux Klan hall night after night until finally one night he recognized the dentist.

atives of the states, after an exposé
by the Chancellor, made known their opinions.

"There was complete unanimity
upon the decision that the passive resistance must cease for reasons of interior politics, and especially the country's finances. The opinion also was unanimous that it was the intention, as well as the duty, of the central Government to end the passive resistance in a manner conformable with the dignity and honor of the German people."

BROOKINGS GIVES $250,000 HOME TO WASHINGTON "U."

dining room, kitchen and servants'
quarters.

Valuable Pieces of Art.
Brookings has said that his collection of pictures represent a personal taste and appeal, rather than an investment in names and works with a large reputation. However, included in the collection are a landscape by Hobbema of the seventeenth century Flemish school which has been valued at $50,000; a portrait by Sir Joshua Reynolds, a portrait of Thomas Payne by George Morland, a distinguished English artist, and several others of quite high money value.

The new Chancellor's home is within sight across Forsythe boulevard of the university campus in a neighborhood occupied by costly homes. It was built in 1911 and has been occupied by Brookings since that time.

Brookings is president of the university corporation. Recently in response to an inquiry, he estimated the sum of his gifts to Washington University as "between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000." His last previous gift was the endowment of the new graduate school of economics and government in Washington, a $100,000 residence in Washington to house students during their last two years' instruction in the course.

The German states have declared that if an attempt were made to invade the unity of the Reich they are firmly resolved to safeguard and defend this unity as the unimpeachable right of the nation."

Further Opposition Useless.
The conference at which the decision to capitulate was announced
was attended by 300 German officials, and the local administration in the Rhineland and Ruhr. It was unanimously agreed that Germany
could hope to gain nothing by continuing to oppose France and Belgium, but there were differences of opinion as to the advisability of negotiating directly with France.

The Chancellor said "that a continuation of the Ruhr struggle would mean that Germany would bleed to death and that the continued adherence of the occupied region to the republic would be threatened."

In his statement the chancellor announced that the Government had decided to abandon the policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhine and had ordered resumption of activities in all lines at once.
The Government's decision was not made conditional on the previous return of deportees or the release of imprisoned nationalists, and other disputed points being left to negotiations with the occupying Powers.

Urges Industries to Resume.

The Chancellor urged the employers to resume operations at their plants and mines immediately, and advocated uniformity so as to avoid independent action which might be detrimental to the restoration of economic normalcy in the Ruhr and Rhineland.

No announcement was forthcoming regarding the method which the Government will employ to apprise
the occupying Powers of its decision to call off passive resistance without having obtained the concessions which in previous utterances it has designated as indispensable. The Chancellor may confine himself to

SAYS SIGNALS GIVEN DESTROYERS WERE 'OBVIOUSLY WRONG'

Commander of Delphy, First of Naval Craft to Go on Rocks, Testifies at Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 25.—
Lieutenant-Commander Donald T.
Hunter, commanding officer of the U. S. S. Delphy, took the witness stand today in the naval inquiry of the disaster which cost seven destroyers and 23 lives, Sept. 8, off Point Honda, Cal. The Delphy led
the destroyer squadron on the rocks,
which he has given to Washington University as a permanent residence for the chancellor of the university. Below, Mr. Brookings.

Whereas, a certain pretended call was issued by one W. D.
McBee and others, addressed to certain members of the House of Representatives of this State, which in substance calls upon certain members to meet at the Capitol building at Oklahoma City
at 12 o'clock, noon Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1923, which said
proposed meeting would be an unlawful assembly dominated and controlled by the so-called known as the Ku Klux Klan, and Whereas, the State of Oklahoma is now under martial law for the purpose of protecting the people of the said State from the rule of the said so-called "Invisible Empire" and to obtain evidence for its extermination,

and

Whereas, by proclamation of the Governor of this State, the said
"Invisible Empire," or Ku Klux Klan, was declared to be an enemy of the sovereign State of Oklahoma and the evidence adduced before the military courts shows that it has taken over the political government in many cities and counties and as an organization has murdered,
whipped, beaten, flogged and outraged many citizens of this State, and by said proclamation all persons were forbidden to aid or abet in any manner the carrying out of the purposes of said "Invisible Empire," commonly known as the Ku Klux Klan,

Whereas, the proposed meeting
of the said certain members of the House of Representatives unlawfully, as aforesaid, is in de-

finiance and violation of the statutes of the State of Oklahoma,
now under military law, and also contrary to the Constitution and laws of Oklahoma and is an attempt to break the peace of the State;

Now, therefore I, J. C. Walton,
Governor of the State of Oklahoma, hereby command, order
and direct you, as Adjutant-General, to disperse said unlawful assembly and prevent absolutely the proposed meeting at 12 o'clock
noon, Sept. 26, 1923, at the Capitol at Oklahoma City or at any other time or place in the State of Oklahoma after the date of this order, and you will use all the military forces of the State,
if necessary, for such purpose.
To carry out this order, you may use whatever force and all force
of arms necessary thereunto.

The citizen soldiers of this State, between the ages of 21 and 45 years, are commanded and ordered to hold themselves in readiness with such arms as they may possess or can procure to come to the assistance of the sovereign
State of Oklahoma when directed so to do by the Governor or the Chief of its military forces or by the Adjutant-General.

You, as Adjutant-General, will issue all supplemental orders and directions for the carrying out of this order and to protect the lives and property of the citizens of Oklahoma who are not aiding and abetting said professionally or otherwise giving aid or comfort to the said "Invisible Empire," or Ku Klux Klan.

Governor of the State of Oklahoma and Commander-in-Chief of the military forces of the State.

Asked for Reverse Bearing.
This was at 2:15 p. m., he said,
about seven hours before the wreck.
The Delphy finally asked for a reverse bearing from Point Arguello, and obtained, he asserted, this bearing showing them for the north.

The effect on his mind of these "obviously inaccurate" bearings was to convince him that little weight
could be placed on the bearings
from Point Arguello.

The witness then went into various details of the Delphy's navigation on that day, indicating on a chart the positions to which he referred.
He declared that at 10 o'clock that night, he went on, three radio compass bearings were received which coincided roughly with his dead
reckoning, in that they showed him going towards Arguello light; but at 8:25 o'clock, when he was sure the ship was south of Point Arguello,
another bearing was received indicating that the Delphy was some distance north of the point. So a message was sent to the radio compass station, he said, saying:

"We care to the southward; give us reciprocal (reverse) bearing," and the request reverse bearings were sent.

There is a rumor in diplomatic circles that a third power has offered the Government its good offices in the direction of vouchsafing
to the Government the necessary conflict which would not impose humiliating conditions in the nature of a signed capitulation, or formal admission of responsibility for passive resistance.

All Parties in Conference.
The first indication of the German Government's decision came late last evening when the Berlin newspapers were given a cautiously worded communication in which the decision was buried in the midst of a long day's discussions with the representatives of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

The conference was attended by the representatives of all the political parties, labor organizations, industrialists, civic bodies and governmental and municipal officials connected with the German posts, telegraphs and railway administrations
in the occupied zones. Hugo Stinnes, Fritz Thyssen and other industrial magistrates sat with labor leaders, railway officials and mine foremen and the talk between them was plain and to the point.

The present Cabinet is considered to have fortified itself against parliamentary attacks, in that its resolve to surrender without having secured concessions in advance from Premier Poincare was fully communicated to the leadership of the coalition parties,
as well as to all factors which are supposed to have a decisive influence on the deliberations of the Reichstag.

The Government's immediate efforts, he declared, would be directed toward obtaining the release of prisoners and residential rights for evic-tees and their families.

The resistance program cost the Government in the neighborhood of eight quadrillion marks. The subsidies established during the campaign can only be abolished gradually, although one early effect of their discontinuance will be a visible deflation in the money stringency in the opinion of officials, since the shipment of carloads of marks into the Ruhr and Rhineland will cease.

Telegraphic instructions have been sent to all Government officials and civil service employees directing them to obey only such orders as are decreed by the Central Government.
The situation should demand emergency measures, these will be decreed by President Ebert.

This official action is regarded as the Government's reply to the attempt by the Bavarian railway workers' unions to interfere with the Central Government's effort to prevent misuse of the Federal railways.

Official Decision Due Tonight.
The Government tonight will give official formulation of its decision, which they will broadcast. Of-

WAR DEPARTMENT AWAITS REVISED OFFER BY FORD

Gorgas Power Plant, Part of Shoals Property, Sold to Alabama Company for $3,- 500,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Possibility of further negotiations between the Government and Henry Ford for the purchase of its remaining property at Muscle Shoals, Ala., hinges today on the Detroit manufacturer's decision as to submitting a revised offer. The Gorgas Steam Power plant, part of the property, has been sold by the Government to the Alabama Power Co. for approximately $3,500,000.

The sale of the Gorgas plant was made on the last day of several extensions of time left the Government to reach a decision on the War Department's contract with the power company requiring that it either move the plant from the power company's land or sell it to the company.

When Ford was summoned to Washington some time ago and informed that the Department of Justice and the Judge Advocate-General of the Army had held the contract valid, he announced that he would take under advisement Secretary Weeks' suggestion that he submit a revised bid excluding the Gorgas plant.

Sale Probably Means Ford Will Not Make New Offer.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 25.—Sale of the Gorgas steam power plant to the Alabama Power Co. probably means that Henry Ford will make no further bid for the remaining Government properties at Muscle Shoals, Ala., it was learned today.

At the Ford offices it was pointed out that Ford already had made it plain the Gorgas plant was considered vital to the economical operation of the Muscle Shoals property.

GOT $3 FOR WHISKY PURCHASABLE AT $1

Former Owner of Jack Daniel Warehouse Says "Location Probably" Affected Price.

General prohibition agents, pursuing their investigation of the "milking" of $93 barrels of whisky
in the Jack Daniel bonded warehouse at 3940 Duncan avenue, are searching for a group of men who paid approximately $3 a gallon for whisky that could have been purchased on the open market at less than $1 a gallon.

The price paid was disclosed to the agents yesterday by Lem Mc-Mow, Tennessee distiller, who formerly owned the Jack Daniel distillery, warehouse and the whisky stored in the Duncan avenue warehouse. He appeared in St. Louis with counsel and submitted to questioning by the agents.

$122,000 for 45,000 Gallons.
McMow exhibited minutes of a stockholders' meeting, held in St.
Louis June 28, to prove that he had disposed of his holdings in the Jack Daniel company. These showed that McMow, Thomas A. Heffernan and Harry L. Dahlman resigned from the directors and that their places were taken by Don H. Robinson, Thomas J. McAuliffe, Thomas J. McCaffrey, Leonard Stone and Edward Meininger, Robinson being elected president, Meininger, vice president and McAuliffe, secretary.
McMow stated that he received $122,000 for approximately 45,000 gallons of whisky. He was reminded that brokers were selling whisky certificates on the open market on a basis of less than $1 a gallon, and was asked to explain the discrepancy between that price and the price that he received. He said the location of the warehouse probably had something to do with it.

Asked if the new owners had purchased the building, McMow said they agreed to rent it from him, but as yet had paid no rent. McMow
then disclosed that the $125,000 bond, by which the Government is secured payment of taxes at the rate of $2.25 a gallon in the event of removal of the whisky from the bonded warehouse, is carried in his name.

No Trace of New Officers.
McAuliffe, the latest recorded secretary of the company, formerly lived at 4543 Madison avenue, the agents were told. Inquiry at that address disclosed that he moved last January to the 3900 block on New Ashland place. He could not be found in that neighborhood, and agents later were told that he had gone to California. No trace of any of the other new directors and officers of the company could be found.

David Nolan, in charge of the local office of the intelligence unit
of the United States Internal Revenue Department, has entered the investigation to determine what connection, if any, Government employees may have had with the disappearance of the whisky from the Daniel warehouse.

Meanwhile, Collector Heilmich is having whisky stored in other bonded warehouses here re-gauged to see if there has been any further "milking." These include the Leonor storage house at Grand boulevard and Lucide avenue and the concentration warehouse owned by the Garrett Wine Co., and occupied by a group of liquor dealers at 4194 North Union boulevard.

we wish to emphasize
the above conditions,
which will be rigidly adhered to.

Such a sale as this can only be successful when both manufacturer and retailer make up their minds to eliminate all thought of profit, and this is just what was accomplished. Our New York buying organization received instructions to do two things: one, to secure enough Dresses to make this one of the greatest sales of its kind ever held in St. Louis; the other, to secure the best Dresses ever offered at $15.
Their efforts were successful even beyond our highest expectations.

Limited space permits us to give you only an inkling of the many rare and distinctive styles. You will have to come and feel the excellent materials, examine the expert workmanship and observe the infinite array of beautiful styles to fully realize the magnitude of this offering. Then your enthusiasm will be as genuine as ours. And seeing such Dresses will mean buying. In many cases, women will purchase two or three Dresses, and thrifty women will furnish their complete Fall wardrobes, so extraordinary are these Dresses.

SELPH NAMED RECEIVER FOR JEWELRY COMPANY

Involuntary Petition in Bankruptcy Filed Yesterday Against Walker Firm.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against the Walker Jewelry & Loan Co., 215 North Seventh street, by two law firms, Frumberg and Russell and Levinson and Levinson, for three clients alleging that the loan company, on Sept. 19, transferred a lot of jewelry, valued at $5000, to F. C. Millspaugh, receiver of the United Home Builders of America, with intent to prefer him as a creditor. Millspaugh is State Commissioner of Finance.

The petitioning creditors and the amounts of their claims are Joseph Frackman Co., Inc., New York, $2085; Milton Watch Co., New York, $170; and B. H. Briggs, St. Louis, $33.

The petition asked for a receiver, and Colin M. Selph, former Postmaster, was appointed.

Louis K. Harris, president of the Walker Jewelry & Loan Co., was president of the Harris & Kober Diamond Importing Co., which failed last February with liabilities in excess of $1,000,000. The bankruptcy proceeding against the latter company disclosed that Harris & Kober had purchased the Walker Jewelry & Loan Co. from Simon Van Raalte, 16 Washington terrace, partly with funds of the diamond importing company. It was further disclosed that Harris & Kober had pledged considerable of their merchandise and customers' accounts to Van Raalte, on which they claimed he had charged them "5 per cent per annum, troubled," or 15 per cent interest.

In a settlement that was made with creditors of the diamond importing company, Van Raalte took a loss of $65,000. He holds notes against the Walker Jewelry and Loan Co., secured by collateral of that company. Samuel Kober, who was Harris' partner, recently withdrew from the organization.

Selph last week was appointed bankruptcy receiver for the Kurlander Bros. and Harfield Cloak and Suit Co., by Judge Faris.

Patrolman Bitten by Dog.

A mongrel dog was captured by Patrolmen Shannon and Pribble of Central District at 726 South Sixth street early today after it had bitten Shannon on the hand and arm. He was walking his beat at Sixth street and Grand avenue when the dog attacked him. The animal will be turned over to the City Marshal.

You cannot afford to economize on sleep

Sleep is the most important of life's few necessities. Total loss of it will kill any animal in a week, while men have gone without food for fifty days or more and quickly recovered.

Yet the majority of Americans spend lavishly for food, year after year, and make their beds objects of unthinking economy.

For this mistake they pay—pay in the finest part of their mental energy and physical well-being—pay even in years of life itself.

And all the while, the best spring and mattress made costs only two or three cents per night of use.

Check up on your own sleep equipment today. Go to your furniture dealer's and examine the luxurious Simmons springs and mattresses he displays in various styles at very moderate prices.

Compare them tonight with your own bedding, carefully. Decide for yourself, then, whether you can afford to economize on comfort and sleep any longer.

'SLEEPY' DRIVER WHOSE CAR KILLED WIFE, HELD

Manslaughter Charge Against St.
Louisian Who Drove Auto
Over Embankment.

Charged with manslaughter in the death of his wife through an automobile accident near Carlinville, Ill., yesterday, Bernard Tessmer, 25 years old, 1809A North Twenty-fifth street, was released from the Ma-coupin County jail at Carlinville this morning in time to accompany his wife's body back to St. Louis. He also gave bond on charges of violating the prohibition laws, arising from the finding of a bottle of wine
in the overturned car and the contention that Tessmer was intoxicated
at the time.

Tessmer, his wife Elizabeth, 20,
and his mother, Mrs. Mary Tessmer, left St. Louis about 6 a. m. yesterday. Three hours later the car went off the concrete highway near the Macoupin Creek bridge, two miles southeast of Carlinville, plunged down a 20-foot embankment and rolled over five times.

The occupants were thrown from the car, Tessmer's wife's head being crushed as the machine went over her. His mother suffered severe shock and bruises. Tessmer's hurts consisted of slight cuts.

Other drivers who witnessed the accident, said Tessmer was driving at nearly 60 miles an hour. When placed in jail at Carlinville, he said he could not explain how he came to go off the road, but declared he was suffering from loss of sleep because he had stayed up playing cards
all the night before.

New- Beautiful- Practical

You never saw beauty and writing ability so perfectly combined as in the new engine-turned Wahl Pen made of jet-black rubber. You need only see them to desire them.

It is a satisfaction just to hold a Wahl Pen. The balance and proportion are perfect. The pen fits into your fingers, and seems made for them, alone.

The everlasting nib suits itself instantly to your writing style—and writes delightfully smooth. Experts say it is the finest nib made. It is 14-karat gold, tipped with the hardest, finest iridium.

Wahl Pen never floods, never stains your fingers, and never refuses to write. The comb feed regulates the ink flow perfectly.
The ink starts the instant you touch the point to paper. The Wahl filling device fills Wahl
Pen brimful every time.

Wahl Pen is made by the makers of Eversharp. It is an outstanding fountain pen. See it

2 DEATHS BRING AUTO FATALITIES FOR YEAR TO '96

Total Now 3 More Than at This Time in 1922—Everett McKinney, 17, Succumbs to Injuries.

Two deaths yesterday from injuries suffered in motor vehicle accidents brought the total of such fatalities here this year to 96. This is three more than the number at the same time last year.

Everett McKinney, 17 years old, of 2922 North Ninth street, died at the city hospital at 8:25 p. m. of a fracture of the skull suffered at 10:25 p. m. Sunday in a collision between his motor cycle and an automobile at 9800 Riverview drive. After the accident he was taken to a police station by a man who said he was Herman Ludwig of 1063 Hornsby avenue and that McKinney's motor cycle had run into his machine. Ludwig said he was driving north at a moderate rate of speed, with head and tail lights burning, and stopped at 9800 Riverview drive. McKinney going in the same direction, ran into the rear of the car, he said. Four other persons who were with Ludwig corroborated his story and he was not arrested.

Thurman Taylor, 4, a negro, of 4108 Fairfax avenue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Taylor, died at his home at 3:15 p. m. from a fracture of the skull suffered at 7:45 p. m. July 17, when hit at Pendleton and Fairfax avenues by a machine driven by Alex Smith of Ellenwood. St. Louis County, Smith, who was arrested at the time and gave bond, was rearrested after the death, to appear before the coroner.

Dwight Davis to Address Veterans. Lieutenant-Colonel Dwight F. Davis, Assistant Secretary of War, is scheduled to be the principal speaker Friday at the reunion of the Thirty-fifth Division at Excelsior Springs. The reunion will be on Friday and Saturday.

Each radiator an independent steam heating plant

THE colds and throat troubles due to air that is dried out by ordinary methods of heating will soon begin to be common.

Most people accept them as a necessary evil. Others go to the expense and trouble of providing humidifiers to keep the air normal.

With Clow Gasteam Radiators neither the colds nor the humidifiers are necessary.

These radiators represent the only type of heating system that preserves the normal moisture of the air.

Their Bunsen flames actually make moisture, thus automatically humidifying the air.

Economical, Instantaneous and Automatic Steam Heat

For Clow Gasteam Radiators you don't need a cellar, or a chimney, or solid or liquid fuel. You don't need expensive piping. You don't have to worry about keeping the fire going, nor about smoke, dust, grime, or fire risk.

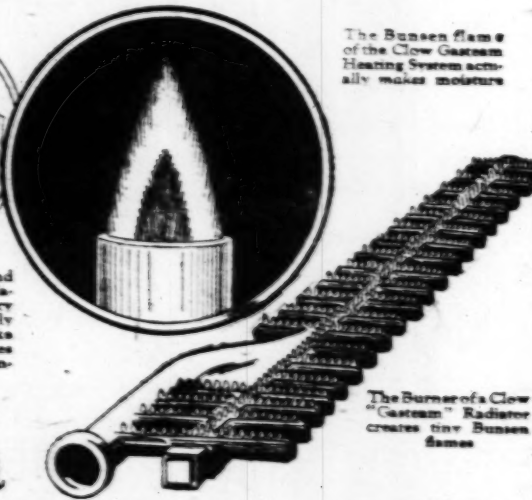

With them installed, when you want steam heat, you turn a valve and light.

They are as convenient and efficient as a kitchen gas range, and, in addition, are automatically regulated.

An automatic regulator controls the flow of gas to the burner, so that there are no ups and downs of temperature—just a steady healthful warmth. There is no heat lost in pipes or up the chimney. 100% of the fuel they burn is converted into usable heat.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 25.—The proposed resolution for the interpretation of Article X of the League of Nations was rejected by the League assembly in plenary session today, but a unanimous vote was necessary to obtain the assembly's approval.

The resolution provided that the constitutional authorities of each state should have the right to determine to what extent military assistance should be accorded other nations if their territorial integrity were threatened.

Panama Also Against It.
In the debate before the vote, the representative of both Persia and Panama spoke against the resolution. The Persian delegate, however, said his country was willing to have the resolution submitted to the permanent court of international justice for an advisory opinion.

The Canadian spokesman favored the resolution, and the French representative, Prof. Joseph Barthelme, also approved it. The Frenchman stated that the resolution existed among some of the delegates that Article X thus interpreted the League might be hastened. If he added, so much the better.

Twenty-nine countries voted for the resolution and 15 abstained from voting. The ruling of Dr. Cosme de la Touraine, president of the Assembly, was that, under the unanimity provision the resolution had not been adopted, but he declared he would submit the whole matter to the council of the League in order to obtain a further ruling. This was interpreted to mean that hopes were held that Persia in a few days might be expected to change her attitude, and other vote yes or enter the list of abstainers.

The debate on the resolution began yesterday.
M. Bolla Jacquemyns of Belgium, who spoke for the Judicial Commission, recommended passage of the resolution. He pointed out that this was the fourth year that Article 10 had been discussed by the Assembly. It had created many difficulties, he recalled. Canada originally wanted the article suppressed altogether, he said, but in a conciliatory spirit he had accepted this demand, provided amendments were passed by the assembly declaring the question of military assistance must be left to the constitutional powers of each state and that the political and geographical circumstances of each state must be taken into consideration.Each Nation Would Decide.
The Belgian delegate explained that both these points were embodied in the resolution and that Persia, under it, no longer need be called upon to determine whether it would be called upon to furnish military assistance without being able to refer the question to her parliament.

Under the resolution, the constitutional authorities of each state would have the exclusive right to determine to what degree, if any, military assistance would be extended to another country when that country was being attacked. Under this interpretation, the Council of the League would not suggest the nature of the assistance. The members of the assembly would not therefore be concerned in advance to assuring the territorial integrity of the other members to the extent of employing their fleets and armies.

"Melancholy" Over U. S.
"Regretful" and "melancholy" were the words employed by delegates at the meeting of the League Commission on Disarmament in referring to a recent communication from the United States Government explaining the reasons why it could not adhere to the convention for the control of traffic in arms. This convention has been ratified by many countries, and the league asked the United States whether it could submit to the League of Nations. When the question was asked, Lord Robert Cecil remarked that the commission had received a letter from the United States Government, which he was sorry to say was negative in character.

Christian Lange of Norway characterized the American answer as "melancholy." The United States, he said, had explained its reasons for non-adherence, but had given no indication of what it would do to control traffic in arms. He hoped the commission would be given the widest latitude. It ought to be made clear

BANKERS' HEAD DEFENDS
CAPITALISM, BUT URGES
REFORMS WITHIN SYSTEMChild Labor, 7-Day Week and Unduly Long Hours Assailed by J. H. Puelicher—Attacks Radicalism.Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 25.—Justifying the capitalistic system as having "brought to all the people more comfort and greater leisure than has any other system thus far tried," J. H. Puelicher, president of the American Bankers' Association, in his convention address here today made a vigorous assault on the various radical schools of the day.

At the same time Puelicher recognized a number of evils of the capitalistic system, declaring that there should be no child labor, no seven-day week, no unduly long hours of labor and no "treacherous business cycles." He said that "any system of society can last only if its adherents promptly abolish evils as they develop," or else reform will be forced from without "by those who will destroy with the evil all that is good."

"Socialism, communism, anarchism, syndicalism, I. W. W.-ism are seeking to make converts in their attacks upon the very foundations of our Government, in their attacks upon the institutions which have made America a great democracy, by affording more opportunities for success and happiness than anywhere else in the world," Puelicher said.

"Warfare Against Successful."
"Although every human being hopes for ultimate success, warfare against the successful is volubly raging. The dreamer, usually honest, but usually impractical, the demagogue, never honest, but often too practical, the professional reformer, all have declared their intention of preaching the gospel of unrest, of class hatred, of disrespect for law and order, of discontent with honest endeavor."

"Their stock in trade is appeal to the jealousy and indignity of the less fortunate. Capitalism is to be throttled. Individual initiative is to be throttled. Its rewards confiscated. The lazy and the indolent hope to secure to themselves the earnings of the diligent. As in Russia, some would have others work through taxation 'bled capital white.' To justify confiscation, in one form or another, the faults of capitalism are magnified. The industry is rewarded by the possession and use of its accumulations can it be hoped that accumulations or capital will be driven for and preserved without the aid of capital or the accumulations of yesterday, each day is a new beginning."

Reward of Initiative.
"The wonderful progress and prosperity of America are due to the protection of the reward of individual initiative. The reward of individual initiative is the outstanding attribute of the capitalistic system. When Russia substituted socialism for individualism, only the generosity of starvation, they people that the inspiration of individual reward may remain the heritage of our people, equality of opportunity must be maintained. The capacity of the biological individuality of the capitalistic system has brought to all the people more comfort and greater leisure than has any other system. Its evolution demands that, with the further development of the machine, there must be given greater consideration to the development of the man."

"If we wish to preserve the good which this system brings to humanity, we must abolish in it whatever is bad and detrimental to progress, to happiness, to liberty. Those men who have courageously and honestly demanded that the evils of the capitalistic system be corrected, should command our admiration and respect."

Assail Child Labor.
"There should be no child labor. If it is impossible to restrict it legally, the moral force of the entire capitalistic system should protect it. Child life and child development, and motherhood, compelled to labor, and is intelligent self-interest, intelligent self-preservation."

There should be no seven-day week. There should be no unduly long hours of labor, undermining the health of workers, and even where this is not true, preventing them who was responsible for the delay in the restriction of the traffic in arms.

Why This Nation Refused.
The commission adopted a resolution that the temporary mixed commission on armaments prepare the draft of a new convention and that the United States be invited to appoint representatives to co-operate with the Commission.
Lange's complaint was based upon the fact that the league had asked the United States to make any suggestions likely to throw light on the best way of handling the international traffic in arms, which has been engaging the attention of the league for several years as one of the world problems intimately connected with the movement for limitation of armaments.

The United States answered that from having proper leisure for family life, for self-improvement, for recreation.

"There should be no treacherous business cycle with its inflation or deflation, excessive wages or unemployment, 'feast or famine.' Industry should seek levels which would result in constant production, avoiding excessive which lead to suspension of operation, resulting in home-destroying unemployment."

"Our Americanization efforts have left vast multitudes of immigrants unfamiliar with American institutions, American ideals. The advantages of American political and economic life have been accepted by too many of our newly adopted citizens without understanding. Should future immigration be viewed from the standpoint of greater material wealth for the already wealthy America, or should America insist on a quality of citizenship that will conserve the character and integrity of her institutions?"

Should Abolish Evil.
"Any system of society can last only if its adherents promptly abolish evils as they develop. If this is not done from within, be assured it will be forced from without by those who will destroy with the evil all that is good."

Puelicher declared there was a great need of better economic understanding, among bankers as well as others. He called the bankers to the defense of the Federal Reserve System, declaring that there is danger in allowing it to be tampered with and to be misunderstood by the general public.

Congress has amended the Federal Reserve Act in ways that appear not to have improved it," he said. "The addition to the Federal Reserve Board of members representing distinctive interests sets a dangerous precedent. Representation on a body such as the Federal Reserve Board ought to be for the benefit of all the people. Representatives ought to be appointed on the basis of their qualifications and their technical training. There can be no objection to a farmer on the Federal Reserve Board, provided that the farmer understands the mechanism of finance and provides minutes in which to restore the wires to that bucket shop, under threat of political reprisal at Albany, we shall give that gentleman's name and his threat to the newspapers."

If an officeholder, who has a retaining fee from a notorious bucket shop may warms and provides minutes in which to restore the wires to that bucket shop, under threat of political reprisal at Albany, we shall give that gentleman's name and a record of the conversation to the public, with such other details as the trustee, to his sensational seizure of power, came from the big steel mills of Lombardy. The most probable instrument of this grabstake was Ercolo Marcell, the multi-millionaire owner of the famous Marcell Motors, which are used in thousands all over the world.

Francis Delais, the French economist, has said that Signor Bessi was the capitalist of the march on Rome. He means Eugene Bessi, the right hand man of Marcell. At the present time it cannot be doubted that not only the Industrial Metallurgists' Association is backing Mussolini through his party funds, but that the wider Confederazione Generale della Industria Italiana, whose organizing secretary is Gino Olivetti, is supporting the Mussolini regime by all the means in its power.

Newspapers have been bought—the latest which is said to be the Giornale d'Italia—money is freely poured out for propaganda, more often financially unprofitable than for the thousands of Fascist trade unionists. Behind Mussolini are deep purses.

This hidden connection of Mussolini with big industry explains both the motives and the means for and with which he has fought Socialist Labor. These workers, when the Milanese and Turin workers were occupying the factories, the whole country was in the throes of economic ruin, due in the first place to the overcapitalization of the steel industry during the war, especially by the gigantic Ansaldo consortium.

Unemployment was starving the workers to death, the free trade industries and their banks were morally at least, behind the bold attempt of the occupying workers to find a solution by themselves. Socialist, still less Communist, feeling was only the accompaniment of the trouble.

The Italian workers at heart, one of the most individual workers in the world. Farthest of all from his thoughts, was the will to wreck the steel industry on which he lived; all that was in his mind was the desperate desire to end unemployment. Before Fascism and Mussolini could win, therefore, they had to find work for the men. The big steel men gave them funds to do it. From this springs the instant success of the fascist syndicates, which offered, not doctrine, but work to every adherent.

Some of this work was wrong, to the exclusion of orthodox trades unionism, from prefects and government departments and municipalities, where public works were going on. At Bologna, in June, 1922, the refusal of an anti-Fascist Prefect caused the mobilization of Bologna, the greatest victory of Mussolini before his march on Rome. But most of the jobs were put at Mussolini's disposal system," he asserts.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 25.—The New York Stock Exchange has inaugurated a campaign to "fight the abuse and lies which daily are hurled at us," Seymour L. Cromwell, president of that institution, declared yesterday in a speech before the clearing house section of the American Bankers' Association in convention here.

"We are tired of the abuse and lies concocted to make the public believe that the Stock Exchange is composed largely of a 'bucket shop' membership," asserted Cromwell. "Hereafter we intend to fight. We intend that every item of information in our possession which will lighten the exchange and tell him that he is attacking us, concerning their records, and their objects, shall be given to the public. If an officeholder stops long enough at the Grand Central Terminal in New York City to call up the president of the exchange and tell him that he wants a certain thing done for someone, contrary to the rules of the exchange, and that he wants an answer in 15 minutes because his train leaves for Albany, where he is going to look into the matter, we shall consider that a threat to the newspapers."

If an officeholder, who has a retaining fee from a notorious bucket shop may warms and provides minutes in which to restore the wires to that bucket shop, under threat of political reprisal at Albany, we shall give that gentleman's name and his threat to the newspapers."

The law which Foulke charges is being brushed aside by the Post-office Department is Section 10 of the Civil Service Act, which provides that "no recommendation of any person who shall apply for office or place under the provisions of this act which may be given by any Senator or member of the House of Representatives except as to the character or residence of the applicant shall be received or considered by any person concerned in making any examination or appointment under this act."

Foulke gives the text of letters sent to Congressmen by the Post-office Department submitting the names of eligible for appointment to fourth class postmasterhips and inviting their recommendations. After stating that "the department is not permitted to consider or file recommendations of a political or religious nature," the letters quote the section of the Civil Service law given above.

"Thus the attention of Congressmen is called," says Foulke, "to the very act which they are urged to violate and to the requirement that no political affiliations will be considered. The very purpose of the letter being to secure those whose affiliations are satisfactory. For if the purpose of these circular requests sent out by thousands is not political, why are they sent to Congressmen? These men will be considered as but little regarded. The subterfuge is perfectly transparent to anyone who knows the facts."

Form of Circular Letter.
In the circular letter of the Post-office Department relating to rural carrier appointments, which Foulke considers "even less skillful," the following request to Congressmen appears: "If you do not consider the appointment of the first named eligible desirable, state why the second or third would be preferable."

This, says Foulke, is actually the thing which constitutes the recommendation forbidden by law. The rural carrier letter likewise quotes the Civil Service law and the rule that selections must be made with sole reference to merit and fitness, without regard to political considerations.

"In other words," Foulke adds, "Congressmen are warned to keep out of his recommendation any statements about politics. The recommendation itself is enough. This gigantic and multitudinous work thus given to these hundreds of Congressmen as to how they shall recommend the men they want to have destroyed the autonomy of the exchange, opened its doors to the dishonest, paralyzed its discipline and unloaded a horde of politicians and potential criminals upon it. I do not say that the men who drew up the legislation realized the effect of the laws they would have enacted, but I do state that the position of the exchange has been sustained and its reputation for the past few months."

Among the proposals of these postmasters and more than 40,000 rural carriers. These offices, Foulke points out, are valuable to Congressmen and other politicians, and the political affiliations of the applicants are carefully investigated before appointments are made. "They are really an immense power in controlling politics under the spoils system," he asserts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—"Shameless violation of the law, going on every day and almost every hour," is charged against the Post-office Department by William Dudley Foulke, president of the National Civil Service Reform League, in an article he has written for Good Government, the organ of the league. The violation, Foulke says, consists in asking Congressmen to recommend persons for appointment as postmasters or rural carriers.

Foulke points out that Postmaster-General New did not originate this system, under which appointments are made in reward for political services, but says he is responsible for its continuance. If the department, he says, would appoint in every case the highest man on the eligible list of three supplied by the Civil Service Commission, instead of permitting a choice to be made among the three, the present abuses and actual violations of the law would speedily be corrected. He recently set forth this view in a talk with President Coolidge.

Civil Service Act Cited.
The law which Foulke charges is being brushed aside by the Post-office Department is Section 10 of the Civil Service Act, which provides that "no recommendation of any person who shall apply for office or place under the provisions of this act which may be given by any Senator or member of the House of Representatives except as to the character or residence of the applicant shall be received or considered by any person concerned in making any examination or appointment under this act."

Money Was Furnished by Magnates Who Had Seen Their Factories Seized.

This is the second of a series of articles to be printed from day to day in the Post-Dispatch, written by men who know what is going on behind the scenes which hides Dictator Mussolini not only from the world outside of Italy but from the Italian people themselves. Mussolini censorship forbids the spoken and the written word alike and is drawn across the country with irresistible vigor.

By WILLIAM BOLITHO.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MILAN, Aug. 15.—Two chronic maladies poison Italy. She has no coal; her peasants have no land. The rest of her is as sound as a ship. She is one of the vigorous, fresh countries in Europe. But until she has found a permanent cure for her two sorrows she will be periodically subject to revolutions; such as the occupation of the steel factories and the land, three years ago; and counter revolutions, such as the dictatorship of Mussolini.

Lack of coal has caused the growth of a highly protected, centrally organized, powerful metallurgical industry, with its own party, its own banks. It employs the best-organized skilled workmen in the country, whose interests are vitally bound up with their employers.

If the tariff wall which protects the industry like a fort is broken down, both the employers and the workmen are completely ruined. For without coal, smelting could not be done at a price which would allow competition with more favored foreign manufacturers. This is an essential factor of the Mussolini regime.

Once it is understood, the dark maneuvers of the Dictator during the past month, and his very rise to power become easily explicable. It is obvious that propping up the Fascist movement must have been something more tangible than songs and patriotism. The march on Rome of October last, when 20,000 young men and boys were brought from all parts of Italy to Naples, fed, housed and paid, needed money, and a lot of it. That money came from the metallurgical industry.

The Money Behind the Man.
The silence of war of the Fascist movement, from the days when it began to be clear that Mussolini, its leader, was more than a mere encephalic seizure of power, came from the big steel mills of Lombardy. The most probable instrument of this grabstake was Ercolo Marcell, the multi-millionaire owner of the famous Marcell Motors, which are used in thousands all over the world.

Francis Delais, the French economist, has said that Signor Bessi was the capitalist of the march on Rome. He means Eugene Bessi, the right hand man of Marcell. At the present time it cannot be doubted that not only the Industrial Metallurgists' Association is backing Mussolini through his party funds, but that the wider Confederazione Generale della Industria Italiana, whose organizing secretary is Gino Olivetti, is supporting the Mussolini regime by all the means in its power.

Newspapers have been bought—the latest which is said to be the Giornale d'Italia—money is freely poured out for propaganda, more often financially unprofitable than for the thousands of Fascist trade unionists. Behind Mussolini are deep purses.

This hidden connection of Mussolini with big industry explains both the motives and the means for and with which he has fought Socialist Labor. These workers, when the Milanese and Turin workers were occupying the factories, the whole country was in the throes of economic ruin, due in the first place to the overcapitalization of the steel industry during the war, especially by the gigantic Ansaldo consortium.

Unemployment was starving the workers to death, the free trade industries and their banks were morally at least, behind the bold attempt of the occupying workers to find a solution by themselves. Socialist, still less Communist, feeling was only the accompaniment of the trouble.

The Italian workers at heart, one of the most individual workers in the world. Farthest of all from his thoughts, was the will to wreck the steel industry on which he lived; all that was in his mind was the desperate desire to end unemployment. Before Fascism and Mussolini could win, therefore, they had to find work for the men. The big steel men gave them funds to do it. From this springs the instant success of the fascist syndicates, which offered, not doctrine, but work to every adherent.

Some of this work was wrong, to the exclusion of orthodox trades unionism, from prefects and government departments and municipalities, where public works were going on. At Bologna, in June, 1922, the refusal of an anti-Fascist Prefect caused the mobilization of Bologna, the greatest victory of Mussolini before his march on Rome. But most of the jobs were put at Mussolini's disposal system," he asserts.

TACKLES PROBLEMDr. Stanley Says Figures
When Determined Will Serve to Make a Wife's Labors Better Appreciated.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—If a housewife did her work for wages, what would she be entitled to receive out of the family exchequer? This is one of the problems which Dr. Louise Stanley, formerly a professor of the University of Missouri, has set for the new Bureau of Home Economics, of which she was recently appointed chief. Dr. Stanley's plans have just been approved by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, under whose jurisdiction the bureau falls.

"While much of a woman's contribution to the home is intangible and cannot be given a monetary value," said Dr. Stanley, "it is desirable to know on a wage basis the contribution that she makes to the family income in performing various kinds of home duties."

These figures will indicate the real income of the family, will serve to make woman's household work better appreciated and will enable the woman to use her time to best advantage where there is a choice of tasks. Whether it is more profitable for her to make or buy rompers, to hire a laundress or buy a washing machine, to bake her bread or purchase it, will be revealed by studies of this kind. "If the work of the housewife is to be established on a business basis, figures for the different lines of household activity are necessary."

Research Work Needed.
At a meeting of the home economists specialists held at the call of Secretary Wallace last June, it was decided that the new bureau should undertake research work in food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, including household management, equipment, eugenics (heredity and environment, including child care), and art in the home.

Among these recommended subjects, Dr. Stanley said, the bureau would lay special stress on economic studies, experiments with textiles and clothing and equipment studies. The factors entering into clothing costs are not of sufficient established, she said, "and detailed study along this line is highly important. In addition to guiding women in their clothing expenditures, a better knowledge of clothing costs on the part of women who buy should help to stabilize and standardize the clothing industry."

In view of the constant pressure on the housewife, through advertising and merchants, to increase food consumption along various lines, Dr. Stanley said, "There is a real need of standards that will help her to fill the family market basket wisely."

Study of Cost of Housing.
Such as the cost of housing. As Dr. Stanley points out, housing has increased in cost far more than any other item of the household budget, are also projected. She will seek to obtain more definite information, in terms of material and labor, as to the relation of this cost to running expenses.

Concerning some of the other work she has outlined for the new bureau, Dr. Stanley said: "Very little information is now available to the housewife to help her in choosing textile materials and clothing which will give the greatest amount of service. It is hoped that laboratory experiments, supplemented by properly directed field tests, will be made. There is also need of a detailed study of the relation of clothing to the regulation of body heat."

Looking at problems involved in the selection of household equipment from the point of view of long-term investment has great importance, it seems very urgent that something should be done to furnish the housewife with reliable guidance in her purchases. The study of these problems which need immediate study are the efficient heating of the house, the installation of hot water heaters, the comparative economy of various types of stoves and refrigerators, and the best arrangement of equipment in the kitchen.

There should be a special study directed toward the planning of better kitchens in homes to be built in the near future, for no one element in any better-home program can do more to eliminate useless labor than well-planned kitchens. Laundry equipment also needs study from the point of view of efficiency in cleaning and effect on the work of the housewife.

JANE COWL'S BEAUTY LIGHTS UP OLD VERONA

Her Lovely and Appealing Juliet Able Supported by Associate Players.

By CARLOS F. HURD.

THE beauty and dramatic intensity of Jane Cowl, as Juliet in the week's production of "Romeo and Juliet" at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, cap the merit of an unusually fine performance. Thrills of romance alternate with thrills of combat, for the fighting of these Veronese clansmen, whose private feuds overrode the law, seemed as real as the loving of Juliet and her Romeo. Such acting, of principle and support, would make Shakespeare's lines live, even amid far less scenic charm than is given by the exceptional settings of this production.

In the balcony scene, framed all in gray, this white-clad Juliet appears indeed as a luminary. "You dear blessed moon" shines upon her so brightly that "the mask of night" is largely a matter of maiden fancy. Here, pure enunciation, and emotion portrayed with authority, drew the full sweetness from the immortal love lines.

A Maidenly Juliet.
This Juliet's bodily lines are those of early maidenhood, yet her expression is suited to the mature words of the part. Fearful emotion, in which this actress excels, had its full play in the dialogue of Juliet with her parents. In the soliloquy, fatalism was in the air, and the lurid imaginings of the desperate girl reached a high point of realism. Tender and wistful sorrow marked the final scene in the tomb, and the "happy Caper" was embraced not with frenzy, but with an almost serene grief.

The opening scene, a sunlit Italian piazza, is soon saluted by the howling of retainers of the rival houses, starting with the listless baggage of servants, then quickening into the dangerous fighting of skilled men. This sword-play was carried on with a vigor that made the final scene in the tomb, and the "happy Caper" was embraced not with frenzy, but with an almost serene grief.

After the scenes where Romeo and Juliet meet and avow their love, a brief bit of high comedy came, in Juliet's wheedling of her nurse. In another scene, Mercutio's gay and irrelevant recital of the attributes of Queen Mab was one of the best done bits of the performance.

The interviews of the lovers with Friar Laurence, in the holy man's cell, were beautifully enacted. Juliet's contempt for the intruding Paris, whom she encounters there, was shown beyond the need of words to emphasize it.

Engaging Romeo.
Rollo Peters, as Romeo, showed vocal sufficiency and gave fine portrayal of the hero's sudden but deep-seated love. Jessie Ralph played the nurse with sure touch, and Dennis R. Mercutio was an engaging character, in contrast with the meanness of Louis Hector's Tybalt. John Crawley, beginning in the colorful role of the Prince, found a better opportunity, near the end, in the pitiless but sinister character of the apothecary.

The designing of the production, one of the most striking ever given to a Shakespeare play here, is to the credit of Rollo Peters, the Romeo of the cast.

The production is in four acts, with 16 scenes, of which the Veronese piazza and the friar's cell are most frequently repeated. The audience, which was not large, was most appreciative, and few departed before the end, which earlier started the announcement says "15 sharp"—may another time bring nearer to the usual closing hour.

West Sr. of 11 Westmoreland place, grandfather of the bride, with Mrs. West and their daughter, Frances, will go east for the ceremony. The engagement was announced in St. Louis several months ago, and is of particular interest here, because of the fact that Miss West attended Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., with her brother of St. Louis young woman, and is well known here. She visited Miss West in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Ross Duncan, Meier of the Kent road, St. Louis County, and their children will return Oct. 1 from their summer home at Biddeford Pool, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hodgman of 5379 Waterman avenue and their daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Eunice, are touring Virginia by motor car. They will remain in the East until November. Plans for Miss Elizabeth Hodgman's marriage to William M. B. Freeman of Newton Center, Mass., will be announced on their return.

Mrs. Frederic August Luytjes of Brentwood, Me., and her daughter, Elizabeth, are in Paris and will return in a month. Mr. Luytjes and F. A. Luytjes Jr. will arrive in New York today on the Olympic, and will return home later in the week. Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kaiman of 51 Portland place and their daughter, Miss Janet, also are on board the Olympic and will come to St. Louis shortly.

Miss Celeste Terry, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert J. Terry of 9 Lenox place, will be introduced to society at an afternoon reception late in October. Miss Terry was educated at an Eastern college. With her parents and two brothers she has spent the past summer in Canada and in Fish Creek, Wis. where the Hanna family has a cottage. She will serve as maid of honor at the Velled Propriet ball.

Mrs. J. Percival Phelan of 5205 Waterman avenue, and her daughter, Miss Janet, will leave for New York Wednesday. They will be in St. Louis this week. Miss Phelan is to make her debut informally as a maid of honor at the Velled Propriet ball. They have spent a year abroad.

Mrs. W. F. McElroy of 23 Portland place and her second daughter, Miss Ruth, will leave St. Louis this morning for the Velled Propriet ball for a 10-day stay in New York. She will accompany her daughter to Farmington, Conn., where the latter will resume her studies at Miss Porter's School. Miss Jane McElroy will be presented to society at a reception for which arrangements will be made on her mother's return, and at an evening party later in the season.

Mrs. Daniel G. Taylor of 4907 Pershing avenue and her daughter, Miss Grace, are expected home Thursday morning from Pointe-aux-Barques, Mich., where they have a cottage.

Of interest to society is the marriage Saturday of Mrs. Helen Sharpe.

PUBLIC APPEALS FOR CHARITY NOT NEEDED NOW, CARTER SAYS

Announcement has been made by W. Frank Carter, general chairman of the Community Fund, that "there is absolutely no need at the present time in St. Louis for any public appeal for assistance for families in need. The announcement was prompted by certain such appeals that have been made recently.

"The charities and philanthropies which make up the Community Fund," Carter said, "are entirely willing to give immediate and adequate aid to any person or family in distress. The Community Fund has secured subscriptions for $1,100,000. Payments so far have been adequate to meet the needs of the member organizations, which have been conducted with efficiency and economy during the past year, and we expect that continuing aid during the rest of the year will continue to meet their needs. The contributors to the Community Fund should have the assurance that no individual appeals for assistance will be made."

It is urged that anyone knowing of an individual or group who should report the circumstances to the Community Fund, 922 Central National Bank Building, Office 5280, in letter, in person or by telephone. A report of steps taken will be made to the informant, if desired.

EMILY STEVENS STARS IN 'A LESSON OF LOVE'

Play is an Agreeable Episode in a Rather Backward Theatrical Season.

By KEYWOOD BROWN,

Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—"A Lesson in Love," at the Thirty-ninth Street Theater, is an agreeable episode in our rather backward theatrical season. To be specific it is not as good as "In Love With Love," but visibly ahead of anything else which has opened recently. It is a play well equipped with humor, wit and warmth, and it provides the usual for two performances which are utterly admirable. We speak of Emily Stevens and Edward Emery. Here there is nothing to be altered, but there are things about the play which we would wish otherwise.

"A Lesson in Love" unfortunately belongs to that school of plays in which someone remarks in the last act, "It was all a joke. I was just trying to test you." Nobody but a playwright could ever engage in such a painful task. Captain Brissette comes to England to see a young woman whom he met before the war. At that time she was married, but her husband has since died. The gallant French captain knew the English girl only casually, but she has remained with him as a romantic ideal. He is pleased to find that the glamour persists, but to his horror, he discovers upon better acquaintance that the young woman is a conventional prude. He happens to be present when she is brutally cruel to a woman far because she has lived out of wedlock.

Woes Her Ardent.
Accordingly, Brissette undertakes to convince the heroine that love is not everything. He woos her ardently and when she confesses in a thrilling outburst that she loves him, he tells her that marriage is an impossibility. But she decides to go with him nevertheless, only to be told that of course it was just a trick and that he has a marriage license in his pocket.

This, it would seem, ought to be enough to irritate any young woman out of even the most violent affection, but the playwright thinks otherwise. However, though the heroine lacks resentment, she is willing to supply it. Since the whole play revolves around the question of whether love justifies defiance of the conventionalities, the comedy is marred when the revelation comes that this was never really an issue.

But much must be forgiven to a playwright who has been able to devise a first act so deftly amusing as the opening of "A Lesson in Love." The more tumultuous scenes which come later are less expertly written, but in the playing of Miss Stevens is so true and thrilling that the values of the manuscript itself are less under consideration. The moment in which the woman confesses her love is done with an impulsive, sweeping suddenness which is absolutely convincing. When going through the ropes was hardly more exciting than Miss Stevens at this particular moment.

Faversham's Work.
William Faversham seems to us less brilliant than his co-star, but he has been less favored by the playwright. His French accent is meagre, and the fact that he tries so hard to be something which he obviously is not does not help much. And Rudolph Besler and May Edgington have done more to Faversham than burden him with an accident. When the heroine throws herself into his arms and blurts out her love it becomes necessary for the hero to make a long speech about moonlight on the Sahara desert. We doubt if it does much to help.

The factors which should be set down to the credit of Faversham are grace, a good deal of vivacity and some humor.
Edward Emery is absolutely right as the English dean. We suppose this is what is known as a mellow performance, but though it is rich in a soft and cheering warmth, the actor is too skillful ever to let it run.

"Chicken Feed" Proves That Husbands Are Only Thing Worth While.
Any good politician would be proud to have it said he wrote the play, "Chicken Feed," at the Little Theater, for the larger part of it is vote-getting stuff from the woman's side of the house. Only in its final moments does it revert to the normal and show that after all husbands are the only things that make life worth living.

Bold's play is a light comedy which tells a story of woman's revolt against wives continuing to play the hired girl on a salaried basis of remuneration. In it Miss Roberts Arnold, a much stouter young woman than the Miss Roberts Arnold of "The First Year," and still a much more attractive one, casts aside her wedding and her honeymoon to be on the ground to fight her mother's case against a stingy old man husband.

In the second act at least three married couples have followed her lead and become separated. Miss Arnold's theory of feminine independence somehow has swept the village and "Golden epigrams" rush in frantically. Finally all the women come back confessing into their handkerchiefs that being practical never again will mean so much in their lives as being romantic.

Miss Arnold was exceptionally fine in her part, and Miss Lella Bennett, with a sober face and plenty of philosophical wit, was a great success.

MARION, O., Sept. 25.—The Marion Star, owned by the late President Harding until before his Alaska trip, hereafter will be an independent newspaper, its publisher announced yesterday.

The Marion Star was purchased by Mr. Harding after his Republicanism had got him discharged from the Marion Tribune—he insisted on wearing a Blaine hat on the job—and since the '80s has been one of the strong Republican papers of Ohio. Roy D. Moore and L. B. Brush, Ohio men, who purchased the Star from Mr. Harding and the late Marion Tribune, made the announcement in conjunction with notice that they had suspended publication of the Tribune.

"Is Your Husband Getting Bald?"

If your wife and friends have begun to notice the thin spots in your hair—get busy!

Premature baldness is no joke. It means that you lose the appearance of youth and vitality, it means that people unconsciously classify you as one of "the older men", it means that if your hair has started to slip you should begin the use of Newbro's Herpicide.

Herpicide prevents hair loss by destroying the cause and it permits the hair to grow as nature intended. As a hair saver that gets results Herpicide has no equal.

For an interesting booklet upon "The Care of The Hair" and a small trial bottle of Newbro's Herpicide send ten cents in stamps or coin to The Herpicide Co., Dept. 40, Detroit, Mich.

'BETTER JOB' WITH KLAN FOR ANOTHER PASTOR

The Rev. Robert Evans of East St. Louis to Lecture for Hooded Organization.

The Rev. Robert ("Fighting Bob") Evans, pastor of the Bond Avenue Methodist Church, East St. Louis, had joined the Rev. Charles D. McGhee of the Haven Street Methodist Church, South, in becoming a national lecturer for the Ku Klux Klan. The Rev. Mr. Evans recently obtained a year's leave of absence and preached a farewell sermon last Sunday night, following which he was presented with a gold watch by the George Washington Klan of East St. Louis.

He told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that, while officially under leave of absence, he probably never would return to the Bond Avenue Church again as pastor. As a Klan lecturer he would be able to fight for the "little red school house" against the East St. Louis city administration, and his enemies in general, he said. In addition he admitted that being a Klan lecturer was a "better job" than being pastor of a church, which had only 400 members.

Spoke Under "Ferry" Cross.
The farewell sermon Sunday night attracted a crowd that taxed the capacity of the church. It was delivered with the church darkened and Mr. Evans spoke under a six-foot "ferry" cross. He told of his work in "cleaning up" East St. Louis, and promised that a "whole lot" was still to be done along that line. This was followed by denunciation of parochial schools, St. Louis newspapers, and the East St. Louis city administration. He promised to continue to make East St. Louis his headquarters until he had "whipped" his enemies.

The Rev. Mr. Evans has been active in East St. Louis civic and political affairs for the last five years. He was a nominee for a City Commissionership with the Klan endorsement at the last election, but was defeated.

During the investigation of the East St. Louis Police Department following the disclosures regarding the death of John Campanella in the East St. Louis Police Station, March 25, 1922, the Rev. Mr. Evans was a member of Citizens' Committee which urged a general investigation of the case. Campanella was charged with the murder of Charles Lemon, who was shot to death in a bathroom over a saloon conducted by Campanella at 2001 Missouri avenue. Police reported that he had hanged himself in his cell, but an autopsy disclosed that death had been caused by a blow on the head. Subsequently Campanella's wife told of her husband complaining that he had been beaten by the police.

Police Heads Ousted.
A grand jury investigation followed, and the then heads of the Police Department, Mulconney and Neville, along with seven others, were asked to resign.

Sunday night, Mr. Evans recalled that Mulconney and Neville had gone out of office after the city election.

Pastor Evans had been a frequent lecturer at Klan gatherings, both in Illinois and Missouri. He is married and has two small daughters.

Pays $100 for Job—Is Out Both.
Alexander Vjda of 5146 King's highway boulevard, northwest, told policemen yesterday that he had been swindled out of $100 by a man who promised him a job as watchman for an express company. Another complaint of the same kind was received from another man last week. Vjda said the stranger approached him at Twelfth and Pine street and inquired if he was open for a "good position." It would cost Vjda $100 for a uniform, he said. Vjda went to a bank, drew the money and gave it to the stranger. "Meet me at Union Station and I'll put you at work," the man said. Vjda went to the Union Station and learned he had been swindled.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE TO FIGHT "LIES HURLED AT US"

who would regulate the New York Stock Exchange through political bureaus were licensing of brokers, examination of books, restrictions of the use of securities by firms in the matter of loans, and regulation of the issue and sale of securities. With the last the exchange has nothing to do except in a general way to oppose laws which might interfere with free markets for legitimate securities offered in the State of New York.

"Licensing and examination of brokers' books would open up to swindlers and that peculiar breed of politician who herds with swindlers the richest grafts in the history of the nation. Licensing has been advocated by men of the highest honesty and with the keenest desire to do everything that will protect the financial markets, but these men have not figured out the effect which will follow from the use of a system which cannot possibly be effective and which can and will be destructive.

"Will Not Eliminate Fraud."
"Licensing will not eliminate the fraudulent or unscrupulous dealer in securities, but, on the other hand, it will aid the swindler. He can swindle the public more readily if he is operating in virtue of a State license, which to the indiscriminating public would be a guarantee of both his legality and the merits of the securities offered. You cannot prevent crooks or prospective crooks from obtaining a license. A political body issuing licenses will naturally take political references first and general references second.

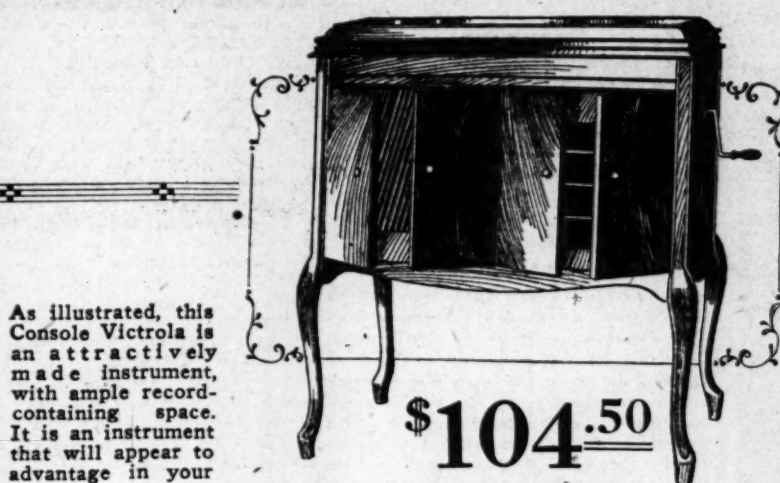

"When the Stock Exchange cut off its quotations from a bucketshop, men of the highest political, financial and social standing wrote letters to the Exchange urging that the wires be restored; there were personal interviews, telephones and every kind of pressure and solici-

tion from men whose names and records meant much in the community. The Exchange denied these demands. Would a political license bureau have done as much? If you have been following the New York newspapers during the past few months, you may have noted the queer mixup between politicians and bucketshops. Would you give to these gentlemen the angels behind the bucketshops the power to grant licenses to brokers? Would you permit them to force the Stock Exchange to admit crooks?"

As illustrated, this Console Victrola is an attractively made instrument, with ample record-containing space. It is an instrument that will appear to advantage in your home.

The Elgin Time Observatory
Elgin time is broadcasted three times daily, at 12 noon, 6 p. m. and 12 midnight, Central Standard Time, from the Elgin Time Observatory through Station WDAF—the Drake Hotel, Chicago.—The Elgin Time Observatory is the only one operated by a watch company in practical time taking service every day.

These are the Master Recording Clocks, sealed in a partial vacuum and constantly checked by the star observations.

These are the Master Transmitting Clocks, checked by the star observations and ticking off precise time throughout the Elgin Laboratories and Timing Rooms.

Elgin takes the time from the stars and puts it in your pocket

OUT in Elgin, Illinois, there is a spick and span little building standing all by itself on a little knoll.

This is the Elgin Time Observatory—for the sole purpose of recording the exact time from the passage of the stars across the meridian.

The astronomer makes 110 star records in each night's observations—and the time is correct within a few thousandths of a second.

Now to put this precise time into your pocket.

This is the function of four master clocks.

These clocks are checked and corrected day after day by the star observations. They transmit the exact time second by second to the Elgin Laboratories and Timing Rooms.

The Elgin Watch you put in your pocket or clasp on your wrist was checked hour after hour, day after day, through all the critical process of adjusting and timing, against the star time observed by the astronomers in the spick and span little building standing all by itself on the little knoll.

CONDEMNATION PLAN APPROVED BY BOARD

Public Service Body Acts on Measure to Clear Site for $6,000,000 Memorial Plaza.

Institution of condemnation proceedings against property to be converted into the Memorial Plaza, as provided in the bond issue, is authorized by a proposed ordinance approved today by the Board of Public Service.

The bond issue contains an item of $6,000,000 for this purpose. Property mentioned in the proposed condemnation ordinance is between Thirteenth and Fourteenth and Market and Olive streets; Twelfth boulevard and Thirteenth and Market and Pine streets and the west half of the block between Twelfth boulevard and Eleventh and Market and Chestnut streets. The city owns the east half of the latter block.

Another proposed ordinance approved by the board provides for condemnation of property between Fourteenth and Fifteenth and Market streets and Clark avenue, on which it is planned to erect the municipal auditorium and community center, for which $5,000,000 is provided in the bond issue.

It is planned to erect a Memorial Building and a Record Building in Memorial Plaza. The City Plan Commission is urging that the proposed new courthouse be erected on the west half of the block between Twelfth boulevard and Eleventh and Chestnut and Market streets, although the Downtown Improvement Association is opposing this, demanding that the courthouse be near the present building, at Fourth and Market streets.

The City Plan Commission is urging speedy passage of the condemnation ordinance because of reports that some property involved has changed hands recently and demands for high prices may be made.

Arguments Heard on Right of City to Issue Bonds.

Arguments were heard in Circuit Court today in the test suit to determine the city's authority to issue $5,000,000 in bonds for erection of a municipal auditorium and community center, one of the items in the bond issue, passed in February. Petition for an injunction restraining city officials from issuing the bonds was filed Sept. 15 by Mrs. Mamie Halbruegge, 3440A Wyoming street, as a taxpayer.

Benj. H. Charles, special attorney for the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee, and Associate City Counselor Oliver J. Senti, appearing for the defendants, contended that the city had authority to issue the bonds under a section of the city charter permitting issuance of bonds for public utilities. They argued that the auditorium would become a public utility.

Jules Field, representing Mrs. Halbruegge, held that powers of the city in this matter must be strictly construed. He cited a State law limiting authority to issue bonds for auditoriums to cities of 30,000 population or less. Charles replied that cities of over 30,000 were not included because such power is granted to them in their charters.

Judge Killoren announced that he would give a decision in a few days. It is expected the case will be taken to the State Supreme Court.

FOREIGN TROOPS SAID TO BE MASSSED ON BULGARIAN BORDER

Concentration Said to Be Centered at Fortress Which Twenty Gave to Jugo-Slavia.

By the Associated Press.
SOFIA, Sept. 25.—Developments indicate that Bulgaria is not only struggling to crush a communist agrarian revolution of wide ramifications, but according to the Government authorities is menaced on her borders by foreign forces prepared to seize the opportunity to intervene on the pretext of putting a speedy end to Bulgaria's internal disorders. Premier Zankoff called on the offices of the foreign Governments here and notified them that there were 50,000 foreign troops on the Bulgarian frontier.

One of the points of concentration is the town of Tsaribrod, the Bulgarian fortress which the treaty of Neuilly gave to Jugo-Slavia. With such a concentration centering on Tsaribrod, foreign military authorities here point out that it would be possible for Sofia to fall into Serbian hands within 24 hours.

It is understood that the Foreign Ministers friendly to Bulgaria have transmitted to their Governments the information given them by the Bulgarian Government.

To meet the double danger which the situation holds, King Boris has signed a decree of martial law which is ready for instant promulgation in case of necessity. This severe measure is regarded as possibly necessary for the prompt suppression of the communist agrarian plot to be under the leadership of Vassil Kolaroff, of the secretariat of the Third International, of Moscow, George Dimitroff, and Todor Lukanoft.

FASCISTI AND CATHOLICS CLASH

Milan Profession Calls Leaders Into Conference to Settle Dispute.

By the Associated Press.
MILAN, Sept. 25.—Severe clashes have occurred here in the last few days between Fascisti and Catholics. Prefect Nasalluroca has called the leaders of the two factions into conference with a view to ending the dissension, but the schism persists.

At Brioschi, a suburb of Milan, Fascisti invaded a Catholic co-operative warehouse, where they did damage amounting to 20,000 lire. A number of arrests were made.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS INCREASED

$200,000,000 More in Year Than in Previous 12 Months.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The higher duties of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, combined with increases in imports to increase customs receipts more than $200,000,000 in the first year of its operation over receipts in the last 12 months the Underwood tariff was in operation.

Figures compiled today at the Treasury showed income from customs levies for the 12 months ending last Sept. 22 was $564,541,621. The duties under the Underwood law for the year ending Sept. 22, 1922, were less than $360,000,000.

"TONY" STUEVER'S BODY TO BE BROUGHT HERE FOR BURIAL

Funeral Arrangements Not to Be Completed Until Word Is Received From Sister in Los Angeles.

Plans for the funeral of Anton C. Stuever, millionaire clay product manufacturer and Democratic politician, who died of enlargement of the heart yesterday at Battle Creek, Mich., will not be completed until word is received from a sister, Miss Emma Stuever, of Los Angeles. The body will arrive in St. Louis shortly before 6 o'clock tonight.

Stuever had been at Battle Creek for four weeks, having been taken there from his ranch in the Rio Grande Valley, in Texas, where he had been since last winter. He suffered the first attack of heart disease about two years ago. A year later he retired from business and since had taken no part in the management of his extensive holdings.

Deeply Interested in Politics. Democratic politics was the chief interest of Stuever's life. He was a member of the Democratic City Central Committee before he was a legal voter and attended every Democratic State and national convention since he was 21 years old.

During 27 years of political activity Stuever did not become a candidate for any elective office, the only political post he held being that of local Commissioner here during the administration of the late Lon V. Stephens as Governor.

His last active political battle was in a losing cause. He was always a supporter of United States Senator James A. Reed and did what he could in Reed's behalf at the Joplin State convention and the San Francisco national convention in 1920. He was endeavoring to obtain for Reed a seat on the floor of the national convention as a district delegate from the Fifth (Jackson County) District.

Liberal Contributor to Party. Stuever was unostentatious in his political work. His power was derived from the fact that he controlled the Democratic vote in several of the South St. Louis wards. With delegates from these wards he was able to make his influence felt in State conventions. He was a liberal contributor to the Democratic party treasury. He served on Democratic Congressional, District and State Committees during many years of his life.

He owned a controlling interest in the Park Circuit and Realty Co., owners of Forest Park Highlands, which is under lease to an operating company, and was sole owner of the Highlands Fire Clay Co., which has mines just south of Forest Park. He was a large stockholder and one of the organizers of the National City Bank.

His most extensive real estate holding was a 25,000-acre ranch, near Raymondville, 45 miles north of Brownsville, Tex. This land, estimated to be worth about $10 an acre, is semi-arid. Irrigation projects have been introduced and recently some little success in cotton raising was attained. The ranch was Stuever's hobby and he spent much of his time there in the last few years of his life.

Brewery Foundation of Fortune. The foundation of the Stuever fortune was laid by Stuever's father, Charles B. Stuever, former grocer, who organized the Home Brewing Co. in the '80s. That was in the days when St. Louis breweries were prospering and the business soon grew into an extensive concern. Anton Stuever was taken into the business by his father and was president and treasurer of the concern when it was taken over by the Independent Breweries Co.

Stuever's first position, after leaving school, was that of bookkeeper for the Kimball Carriage Co. Later he worked as a horseherd in a shop at Park avenue and Dillon street; was a grocery clerk for his father and was salesman for a brewery before going into business with his father.

When Stuever decided to retire from business a year ago he caused Louis Nolte, City Comptroller, to be summoned to the office of his attorney, Sam E. Jeffries, and there asked Nolte if he would undertake management of the Stuever holdings, with Charles A. Stuever, a son.

Had Confidence in Nolte. Nolte, a Republican, who had become acquainted with Stuever only since his election as comptroller, was somewhat surprised. "Anyone who can handle the city's money as you have is capable of taking care of my business," Stuever replied. When Nolte suggested that he furnish a bond Stuever replied, "If I thought a bond were required of you, I would not have called for you." No bond was given.

One phase of Stuever's life which is little known even to his personal friends, in his contributions to charities and gifts to needy individuals. It was his practice to cause cash contributions to be given and always with the request that his name not be mentioned.

In former years he owned a number of fancy horses. He at one time owned several race horses, but most of his horses were driving and saddle animals.

He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Catherine Sweeney; a son, Charles A. Stuever, and a daughter, Mrs. E. L. Mahony, both of St. Louis. He has three sisters, Miss Emma Stuever of Los Angeles, Mrs. Ida Hoogen, a widow, and Miss Anna Stuever, both of 622 King's highway Park.

Stuever was 57 years old. The family residence is at 4691 Magnolia avenue.

OPONENT OF PAPHOS IN INTERNATIONAL RACE TO BE SELECTED OCT. 6

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The selection of the American 3-year-old to race Papyrus, English Derby winner, in the $100,000 international contest at Belmont Park, Oct. 26, may not be made before Oct. 6.

Under the terms of agreement with Ben Irish, owner of the English thoroughbred, the Jockey Club under whose auspices the races will be held has until two weeks before the contest to pick the American representative. The Jockey Club also has the privilege of naming an alternate. Zev, Kentucky Derby victor and star of the Ramocas stable, and My Own, of Admiral Cary T. Grayson's stand out as the two leading candidates, with the odds favoring the selection of Zev. Zev won the Lawrence realization, first official try-out, while My Own captured the National Trial Sweepstakes, the second test. They have never met and efforts so far to bring them together have failed.

Shocker Appeals To Judge Landis

Case of Brownie, Suspended and Fined for Insubordination, Reaches Acute Stage.

Urban Shocker, star pitcher of the Browns, who was suspended by the club for refusal to accompany the team on its present Eastern trip, has returned from Chicago, where he presented the facts in the case to Commissioner Landis.

The disagreement with the Browns' officials grew out of the fact that Shocker insisted he had the right to take Mrs. Shocker with him, even though the club had adopted a rule prohibiting players' wives from accompanying the team.

Shocker said that he told Judge Landis that, whereas he was suspended for alleged insubordination, his real offense was a refusal to permit the club to dictate his family affairs.

Shocker said he did not know what course he would take when the Browns returned home, but said that he believed it was the club's place to lift the suspension or notify him if it desired him to return to the team.

Bill Friel, business manager of the Browns, has said repeatedly that Shocker would be fined each day he remained away from the club after his 10-day suspension expired. The suspension expired Sept. 21.

NATIONAL RIFLE TEAM MATCH ON WEDNESDAY

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 25.—The rifle men spent today in their final training for the National rifle team match—the big event on the national rifle association program—which will be fired Wednesday and Thursday, bringing this year's tournament to an end.

More than 70 teams of ten each are entered. The match is open to any organization of veterans as well as to the various service teams. The United States Marines won the match the past two years. In 1920 it was won by the United States Infantry.

Kinsey Brothers Lose But One Set In Local Matches

Wray Brown Defeats Howard in Opening Half of Two-Set Contest.

By Davison Ohear.

Nearly 600 persons were entertained by an excellent exhibition of tennis when the Californians, Robert and Howard Kinsey, played on the Triple A courts, yesterday afternoon. One doubles and five singles contests were on the schedule which lasted for nearly three hours.

The local men put up a very good defense against the Californians yesterday. Wray Brown won the first set from Howard Kinsey, 6-2, but lost the second, 6-4. Brown was steady in the opening set, but Kinsey outplayed him in the second.

Kinsey Outplays Kammann.

Karl Kammann was in good form against Robert Kinsey. He lost the first set, 6-2, but ran up a lead of 4 to 1 in the second. Kinsey then won six straight games, taking the set at 6-4. There were a number of long rallies and the contest was no doubt beneficial to Kammann, as it was his first experience this season against a first ten ranking player.

Mac Smith, the East St. Louis junior star, played 10 games against Robert Kinsey and learned a few pointers on the effectiveness of the chop stroke. Smith uses the chop and Kinsey is one of the best exponents of the stroke in the United States.

Kinsey won by a 3-1 score. Joe Smith, local boy champion and Soldan High player, opposed Howard Kinsey in the other singles match. Smith managed to take three of the 10 games played. The boy champion is 15 years old and a left-handed player. He was a number of good returns against Kinsey but at times did not get sufficient lift on the ball to clear the net.

In the only doubles match played yesterday, the Kinsey brothers defeated Ted Heusermann and Elmer Schwartz in a two set contest. The National Municipal champions were slow to start against the Californians but as the match progressed improved their game. The Kinseys volleyed well in the match while Heusermann made a number of forearm drives for points.

JUDGE REFUSES AGAIN TO DISMISS WARD INDICTMENT

Third Motion to That Effect Made by Defense in Murder Trial Proves of No Avail.

By the Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25.—Supreme Court Justice Wagner today denied a motion by Isaac N. Miles, chief defense counsel in the trial of Clarence Peters, for dismissal of the first degree murder indictment against the son of the millionaire baker.

The motion, the third made by Miles and denied by Justice Wagner, was put before the court after Attorney General Sherman had returned the State's case. In order to hear arguments on it, court had been adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Shortly after the opening of court today the State rested in the prosecution of Ward.

The action came unexpectedly. It had been supposed that presentation of the State's case would require at least several days more.

The announcement was made following a conference in Justice Wagner's chambers, at which Ralph Ward, brother of the accused man, was present.

Only one witness was called today. It was Walter E. Ferris, an Assistant District Attorney of Westchester County, who testified regarding some county records.

The first surprise of the morning came when Ralph Ward, who, it was rumored in the courtroom, was to be called as a witness, was not called. The conference of attorneys in Justice Wagner's chambers, it was after this conference that the prosecution announced its decision to rest.

MERCHANT SHOT BY HOLDUP MEN IN HOME

Staunton, Ill., Man Wounded by Supposed St. Louis Gangsters Who Wreck Stolen Auto.

Detectives investigating the case of Morris Fleishman, 28 years old, dry goods merchant, who was shot and critically wounded shortly after midnight this morning by robbers in his home at 902 East North street, Staunton, Ill., 40 miles northeast of here, are looking for three St. Louis gangsters, who abandoned a stolen St. Louis automobile in their flight from the Fleishman home. The wounded man was taken to a hospital at Litchfield.

When Night Chief of Police Michael Lupinschek of Staunton responded to a telephone message that a man had been shot he found an overturned Chevrolet touring car in the kitchen door and thinking that it was a ditch about a block away from the Fleishman home. Witnesses said the car had been upset in rounding a corner at high speed, and that one of three men who jumped from the car and ran away was holding his arm as though he had been hurt.

Wounded in Abdomen.
Fleishman was found stretched upon a bed in his home with a bullet wound in the abdomen. He told the police that he heard a noise at the kitchen door and thinking that it was his wife he called to her. When she responded from her room he went into the kitchen to investigate and was ordered to hold up his hands by three men, all of whom were armed with revolvers.

"We want your money," said one of the robbers. "Tell us where it is and we will not bother you." Fleishman started to explain that he did not carry any money in the house and as he lowered his hands one of the robbers shot him. Mrs. Fleishman, awakened by the shot, ran to her husband's assistance and the robbers fled from the house. Mrs. Fleishman assisted her husband to bed and then telephoned the police.

Stolen Auto Being Traced.
In tracing the St. Louis license on the abandoned automobile the police have not yet determined whether it was the one issued for the car or not. Three men, one holding his arm, boarded a St. Louis street car at Edwardsville, 20 miles south of Staunton, about 2 a. m. today.

Three Men Escape After Arvada (Colo.) Holdup.
By the Associated Press.
DENVER, Colo., Sept. 25.—Three armed men, who held up the First State Bank at Arvada, a suburb of Denver, at noon yesterday and made their getaway with $5900 in currency, are still at large today with the major share of their loot.
After the automobile in which the robbers were driving toward Denver broke down, the three men were routed in a gun fight when they attempted to steal another automobile from the garage of a stockman. The men dropped a bag containing $1663.

Ways to Simplify Your Housekeeping With Real System

By WANDA BARTON

Do you know what you think you do? Any housewife who has attempted to teach new help their duties has probably asked herself this question, and consequently has sincere pity for those who have overestimated their own practical knowledge and are going through the same experience.

The silent person who follows you about as the teaching progresses—herself an unknown quantity—may know all you are laboriously trying to explain to her in a pleasant way so that she will like you. She may, on the other hand, be listening to what is Greek to her. And her silence has the effect of making you for the moment doubt your own ability to teach and shaking your faith in what you really do know.

The necessity that arises to force us to teach also awakens us to the fact that we must have system in order to teach. If we have no system it behooves us to work out one without delay. Every well-regulated household should have system; for system saves time, money, wear and tear, and enables one to keep help after the manner of men in their offices. System gives stability to household labor, which it lacks when hit or miss methods are in operation.

A clever woman called upon to teach newly engaged help their duties has a system that is workable, and as she teaches it point by point, she leaves written instructions for formulas, so that the maid may refer to them should she be busy upon any special point. Everything is down on schedule so there can be no excuse for misunderstandings. This is the right way. If you are interested and have one or more helpers to manage it is a good idea to evolve a system of your own that will meet your particular needs.

Meal time, days for certain work, time off duty, methods of cleaning and ways of cooking vary with different families, so that in teaching a maid, you must say to her: "Forget what you have done elsewhere. This is the way I want my work done."

Work in a house is quite different from work in an apartment or flat, and the system required is different. In an apartment help by the day or hour works well, as the help sleeps out in most places.

I know one woman who has found the services of a man hired by the hour a solution of her help problems. The laundry is sent out. The man comes in and brushes down walls and paint, cleans rugs, dusts and polishes the furniture, oils the floors, turns mattresses and does any other odd jobs. This work takes about four hours, once a week. Then he makes a second call during the week to straighten up. The result is a spic-and-span place.

When work is poorly planned, it takes twice as long to do it, and twice the energy is wasted in fussing over it. We hear a lot about work-saving and time-saving utensils, but if they are not used intelligently they are useless. First, adopt system, then see that it is carried out. This demonstrates that we have learned and can teach.

Fashion Frills..

IT IS DIFFICULT at present to distinguish the cuff from the muff. Partly because fur is in fashion and partly because Chinese modes are ditto, the cuff in many cases has taken on muff proportions. The illusion is heightened by elaborate fur trimmings.

TWEED SUITS retain their place today among things pronounced chic. The coats are on the box model with an unusually long notch collar.

THE NEW SHEER LINEN LINGERIE is seen today not merely in white or fascinating ivory tints. It comes also in exquisite tinting with frilly lace ornaments dyed to match.

AT LAST—THE GREAT, BIG, DEEP POCKET. It is found today in the latest topcoats sent over from England, the kind with a blurred, wide plaid and a soft, saugily, woolly.

FOR YOUNG GIRLS there are two distinct modes today. One harks back to the basque with its accompanying wide skirt. The other keeps to straight lines, with a little pleated vest like front and long, snug sleeves.

FROM NOW ON

By FRANK L. PACKARD.

A CONTINUED STORY

She clutched frantically at his arm.

"No, no!" she cried out. "Listen!" he said. "You have said you meant that money should be returned if it were within your power to accomplish it. I understand that. Well, no matter what the result, to Dago George or to me, I am going down there to get that money—if I can. But if I get it, I do not promise to return it. Remember that! I promise nothing. So you are free to leave here; and if you think, and perhaps you will be right, that the surest way to get the money back is to go instantly to the police, I shall not blame you. If the police can beat me to it before I settle with Dago George, they win—that's all. But in any case, it is not safe for you to stay in this place, and so—"

"I was not thinking of that!" she said in a low voice. "Nor shall I leave this house—until you do. I—I am afraid—for you. You do not know Dago George."

He did not stir for a moment; and then, with some great, overwhelming impulse upon him, he took her face in both his hands, and held it there upturned to his, and looked into the great dark eyes until the lashes dropped and hid them from his gaze.

"Teresa," he whispered low, "there are some things that are worse than being a thief. I couldn't lay down my hand now, if I wanted to, could I? I can't quit now, can I? I can't crawl. I took that money; and, whether I mean to give it back myself, or keep it, I'd rather go out for good than tell the police it's there, and see the snarl for an honest man—turned honest because he had lost his nerve, and didn't dare go after the money and face the risk of a showdown with Dago George, which was the only way in which he could stay dishonest. Teresa, you see, don't you?" His voice was passionate, hungry in its earnestness. "Teresa, what would you do—play the game, or quit?"

The lashes lifted, and for a moment the dark eyes looked steadily into his, and then they were veiled again.

"I will wait here for you," she said.

THE MAN WITH THE FLASH-LIGHT.

THE silence seemed like some uncanny, living, breathing thing. It seemed to beat, and pulsate, until the ear-drums throbbled with it. It seemed to become some mad, discordant chorus, in which every human emotion vied with every other one that it might prevail over all the rest; a savage fury, and a triumphant love; a mighty hope, and a cruel dismay; joy, and a chill, ugly fear. And the chorus rose and clashed, and it seemed as though some wild, incoherent battle was joined, until first one strain after another was beaten down and submerged, and put to rout, until out of the chaos and turmoil, dominant, supreme, arose fury, merciless and cold.

Dave Henderson crept along the upper hall. The pocket flashlight in his hand, one of his purchases on the way East, winked through the blackness, the round, white ray disclosing for a second's space the head of the stairs; and blackness fell again.

He began to descend the stairs cautiously. Yes, that was it—fury. Out of that wild riot in his brain that was what remained now. It drew his face into hard, pitiless lines, but it left him most strangely cool and deliberate—and the more pitiless. It was Dago George who was the object of that fury, not Nicole Capriano. That was strange, too, in a way! It was Nicole Capriano who had done him the greater wrong, for Dago George was no more than the other's satellite; but Nicole Capriano's treachery seemed tempered somehow—by death perhaps—by that slim figure that he had left standing out there in the darkness perhaps; his brain refused to reason it out to a logical conclusion; it held tenaciously to Dago George. It seemed as though there were a literal physical itch at his fingertips to reach a throbbing hand and choke the oily, lying smile from the suave, smug face of that hypocritical bowing figure that had offered him a glass of wine, and, like a damnable bound, had dragged him, and—movement, of some one stirring below there, that he heard—or only an exaggerated imagination? He was half-way down the upper flight of stairs now, and he stopped to listen. No, there seemed to be nothing—only that silence that palliated and made noises of its own; and yet, he was not satisfied; he could have sworn that he had heard some one moving about.

He went on down the stairs again, but still more cautiously now. There was no reason why there shouldn't be some one moving about, even at this hour. It might be Dago George himself. Dago George might not have gone to bed again yet. It was only an hour, Teresa had said, since the man had come upstairs and stolen the money. Or it might be some accomplice who was with Dago George. He remembered Teresa's reference to the band of blacklegs over whom Dago George was in command; and he remembered that some one had come down the stairs behind her and Dago George. But Teresa herself had evidently been unseen, for there had been no attempt to find or interfere with her. It had probably therefore been—well, any one!

It presented possibilities. It might have been an accomplice; or a prowling guest, if there were other guests in this unsavory hostelry; or a servant, for some unknown reason nowing about, if any of the disreputable staff slept in the place at night—the cook, or the greasy waiter, or the bartender, or any of the rest of them; though, in a place like this, functionaries of that sort were much more likely to go back to their homes after their work was over. It would not be at all unlikely that Dago George, in view of his outside pernicious activities, kept none of the staff about the place at night.

Dave Henderson's jaws closed with a vicious snap. Useless speculation of this sort got him nowhere! He would find out soon enough! If Dago George were not alone, there were still several hours till daylight; and he could wait his chance with grim patience. He was concerned with only one thing—to square accounts with Dago George in a way that would both satiate his fury and force the man to disgorge the contents of his safe.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR TO THE AIR MEET?

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

"WHAT are we expected to wear to the Air Meet?"

That is the first and almost the last question being propounded to the Information Committee of the Air Board by the feminine half of the population since it began to sit up and take notice that this great epoch making event is almost upon us and that it wanted to be in on it.

Anxious and eager as the committee is to give out any and all information that will add to the success of the show and the pleasure of the spectators, this is one question that stumps them. Now if 'twere men asking this question, the answer would be easy. Men, the aesthetic creatures, always know just what to wear!

"What would you tell them?" asked one of the committee timidly. "We've been saying sports clothes," he added, a little more diffidently. "I'd get some authority to pass on it, if I didn't want to assume so tremendous a responsibility," I suggested.

"Would you mind—?" he began. There was an implied compliment which I made the most of, though I knew he was only side-stepping.

"I am not an authority, but I might find one. Suppose I take the question to the couturier who is making the costumes Miss Alice Busch, the reigning Veiled Prophet's queen and her maids will wear when they land from the airplanes to open the meet.

With which suggestion he agreed heartily, enthusiastically, indeed. And upon which suggestion I acted forthwith.

"Sport costumes!" exclaimed the couturier. "Why sport costumes? The Queen and her maids will wear the correct aviation costume, naturally. I can't tell you about them in detail as yet. We are keeping them as a surprise.

"But why should other women wear sport clothes? Sports garments are intended for the participants in sports, not the spectators. They never have been, for all they have been so universally indulged in.

"I believe this Aero Meet to be an unparalleled opportunity for the display of the latest and best in the season's modes."

With which he disappeared behind the scenes and presently brought forth boxes still sealed with Parisian labels and opened up for my delectation such an array of beautiful garments as seldom have dazzled my eyes. There were beautiful suits, most of them of the three-piece variety; frocks in the one-piece mode, and coats of marvelous new textures, wool, but having the sheen of satin, the soft pile of velvet or the embossing of brocade.

A lovely cafe-au-lait duvetyn was one, a one-piece frock to be worn with cape to match. The cape hung in a long point at one angle and both skirt and cape were bordered all around with some mysterious fur exactly the same shade.

Another was of black wool-backed satin, the coat embroidered all over in a Japanese cherry blossom design. The blouse was of scarlet crepe similarly embroidered, and the lining of the coat matched the blouse.

Several other three-piece suits had the coat lined with the same material as that of which the blouse was made.

Then were produced a number of coat dresses which the couturier emphasized, ought to prove, par excellence, the ideal garment for this occasion, worn with the almost inevitable fur neck piece of the moment.

One of these was a straight line garment flaring circular 'wise below the hips, of Scotch plaid frost cloth, the reds and greens of the pattern subdued by the silvery haze produced by the velvety texture of the material.

It had muff-like cuffs of a soft light weight fur and collar of the same fastened with a cabochon and long tassel of silk threads which repeated the colors of the plaid.

Other one piece frocks were of dark blue twilled materials, fastened at the side usually with a cabochon. One was quaintly reminiscent of a Victorian mode, of black velvet fastened all the way from the frilled collar to the hem with flat bows of grosgrain ribbon and a crystal button in the center of each bow. There were wide gauntlet cuffs of the lawn frilling.

Many of these costumes were orders, already sold and would undoubtedly make their first appearance at the Air Meet.

None of the skirts were very long I remarked. "Yes," observed the couturier, "I attended the very last of the Paris openings and it was clearly apparent that skirts are growing shorter rather than longer."

"Of course," conceded the couturier, when I had about succumbed to the lure of the lavish and arrived at the point where I would have announced that nothing short of a bronze velvet brocade on chiffon elaborately trimmed with sable would do—"

"Of course the weather and other conditions will have something to do with determining just what is the proper thing to wear.

"If it is cold, something like this"—and he held up a coat dress of cocoa-colored suede cloth, as warm as leather but infinitely softer, adorned with caracul to match.

"And if it is rainy, sports clothes, I suppose"—he ended rather lamely. And it began to occur to me that possibly the idea back in his head was only that he'd much prefer to see on exhibition and much prefer to sell his more elaborate and more expensive offerings.

Other conditions. Yes, the committee had mentioned some of the conditions that might enter in.

In the first place, the event is to last over a period of three days starting on Monday promptly at 10:30 a. m., while the Sunday before when the populace for the last time preceding the show will be privileged to roam all over the grounds and inspect the planes, and the big dirigible as well as the air men, close up, is expected to draw the biggest crowd of all.

The boxes, or little fanned off yards for the spectators are right out in the open with no covering over head. There will be chairs but the excitement will keep one on tip toes most of the time. So it behooves us to dress comfortably and practically, doesn't it?

There will be refreshment stands, but it is expected that many spectators will come provided with lunch baskets. Picnicking in one's best bib and tucker seems rather incongruous, when you come to think of it.

Having shed the glamour by that installment of direct from Paris, I begin to have led you astray.

I visited another fashion city on woman's time, that nothing but wool, flannel, fleece-like top coats, appropriate for the occasion, happen to be his partner.

On the whole, I believe the committee is wiser than simply picturing the environment, rather than giving advice from an angle point as to what we want. They want a crowd of faces. They do not want faces are framed in a woman down upon the going to be an unwelcome eyes unduly strained to heavenward. As always, go amiss by looking over

THE WISDOM OF A CHILD

By Wm. A. McKeever

"IT'S not what you have but what you are and what you do that counts for most." Such are the words of wisdom of a twelve-year-old boy named Herman Beleski. Herman is a child of the slums, has grown up in dull surroundings, but he studies well at school, plays fair at the games in the park nearby, attends church as regular as the clock and is handy with tools. He was busy making his mother a clothes hanger out of pieces of waste kindling when he coined the Emersonian phrase quoted below.

There are many parents today who would profit greatly by heeding the wisdom of this young unconscious teacher—parents who try to short-circuit their children into an easy life without teaching them to work; parents who pamper and spoil their young with too much leisure, too much finery and too much social indulgence; parents who seek to place their young sons and daughters in an imagined super-class that would exploit the masses but not associate with them.

"Not what you have but what you are." Young Herman made this clever remark as a rejoinder. A big award was offered, a thousand-dollar prize for the best district within his home city as a place for growing children. Someone asked how it would be possible for Herman's dingy neighborhood to compete with the finery of millionaire row. He answered the query with a 100 per cent grade, as shown by this remark.

The wise boy was right in more respects than one. His home district, a packing-house center, was taking care of the play, recreation and industrial training of its children to such a remarkable degree that only four boys appeared in the delinquent list during a period of seven years and no girls were brought into court. Here also every family belonged to the industrial class and all were too busy to waste their time and substance in daylight-to-dawn cabarets.

A Community Council of men and women, a church organization among the Catholics and another among the Protestants, a good system of schools and a complete vacation care-taking program—these were in operation in Herman's district to give meaning to his words of juvenile wisdom. Parents everywhere can win honors for their children by relying upon the significant remark of this boy who did not seem to be thinking of himself as a teacher. Many other boys—and girls too—will utter similar remarks and so guide us older ones into much that is true and helpful in the performance of our work. The real wisdom of the world and of this life which we are trying to live lies hidden in the

Do You Study People?

If You Do You Will Never Find Your Job Tiresome or Lacking in Interest.

By RUTH LEIGH

"H. O. hum," yawned a young saleswoman behind the neckwear counter of the department store I was visiting. "The same thing every day; the same old grind; one customer after another. Never anything new."

Her colleague yawned assent. Altogether, the little group looked exactly as they felt—bored, uninterested, disgruntled. This started me thinking about the interesting possibilities of jobs, and wondering whether any job is, in itself, uninteresting, or whether it is the state of mind of the person in it. In the case of these saleswomen, I couldn't help feeling that their jobs were tiresome only because they weren't keen enough to see the interesting sidelights on them.

When you are selling—whether it is in a store, or calling on customers at their offices, there is nothing more fascinating than the material you deal with during the seven or eight hours of the day. You are working with human nature—always different, always changing. Could anything be more fascinating?

Don't you find it interesting to study people? To sit in the subway train, in the street car, in the hotel lobby and watch those around you? Isn't it absorbing to speculate about them, to wonder what their lives, characters and habits are? Wouldn't you like to talk to some of them, just to see if you have guessed right, or if your judgment is mistaken?

Well, extend this same interest in and curiosity about people to your job—and you make it as interesting as sitting in the subway, studying those around you. Every customer is a problem, a different study in human nature. If you regard each sale as a little game—a guessing game, during which you make certain speculations regarding the temperament of the person be-common child. Why not listen and heed and reap the reward of being guided by the unspoiled young teacher?

Harvest Moon.

HERE, where the stubble is lying, fields are all barren and brown; winds of the autumn are sighing, summer's last leaves drifting down. Once where we walk there was clover, filling the air with perfume; but, now that summer-time's over, gone are the fragrance and bloom. Yet, where the gray mists are clinging, out where the oaks dim and old shadows fantastic are flitting, rises a shield of bright gold. Showing a world that's all golden, wrapped in a mellow gold haze, as in the fairy tales olden, so come the harvest moon's rays. Golden the light it is sending over the harvested sheaves, tokens of summer that's ending; over the last golden leaves. Boughs in the orchard are bending, weighted with apples of gold, where the bright moonbeams are spending lavishly wealth that's untold. Golden are moths that are dancing under the willow tree's shade, golden the bright ripples glancing out where the brooklet has strayed. Though all the song birds are winging, heeding the Southland's far urge, the winds and the waters go surging over earth's aureate verge. Singing of promises hinted back in the blossom-time, June; singing of autumn gold, minted under the radiant moon. Singing of work that is ending now with the falling of leaves, singing of dreams that were blended in with our hopes for these sheaves. Summer comes garbed in her roses, bring her gifts for our praise; but autumn, the reaper, discloses what we have wrought in our days. Here lies our toil and our treasure, garnered since summer's high moon; gold that no record can measure, under the gold harvest moon.

Children's Bedtime Story.

By Thornton W. Burgess

STRANGE things were happening to Brownie the Thrasher. He was a prisoner in a big wire trap made like a pen with a wire covering. This was bad enough, for never in his whole life before had Brownie been a prisoner. Now Farmer Brown's Boy had come over to that pen and was looking down at him with every appearance of pleasure. Without being told, Brownie knew that Farmer Brown's Boy had set that trap. He knew that Farmer Brown's Boy had spread those good things to eat inside that trap just to tempt him in there.

There was no chance to fly, so Brownie began to run about looking for a way out. Presently he found a little opening and ran through it. A little door closed behind him, and Brownie found he was worse off than before. He was now in a small cage. Farmer Brown's Boy came around and opened a little door in the top of that cage, a door just big enough to put his hand and arm inside. His hand closed around Brownie and he was lifted out. At first he tried to peck and struggle, but he was held in such a way that he couldn't. Then he wisely lay still.

What was going to happen to him? He didn't dare think. He was sure that it would be something dreadful. He was sure that he would never see his nest and Mrs. Brownie again. But nothing dreadful did happen. Farmer Brown's Boy held him very gently and comfortably. He stroked him softly and somehow with every stroke Brownie felt better. His heart stopped beating so fast. Little by little fear left him. He began to enjoy it. Yes, sir, he actually began to enjoy it. He didn't know why, but somehow he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy intended no harm.

Then Farmer Brown's Boy fastened a queer shiny thing around one of his legs. It was a little metal band with a number on it. Of course Brownie didn't know this. Farmer Brown's Boy fastened it very gently and very carefully. He took the greatest care that it should not be too loose, yet that it should not be too tight.

When that little metal band had been fixed to suit him Farmer Brown's Boy once more softly stroked Brownie. Then he opened his hand. For a second or two Brownie lay without moving. Then it came to him that he was free. Yes, sir, he was free. He spread his wings and Farmer Brown's Boy made no effort to stop him. Up in an apple tree flew Brownie. He shook out his feathers, and then out of pure happiness at his freedom he sang. He sang as only Brownie can sing.

He looked down at Farmer Brown's Boy. Farmer Brown's Boy was looking up at him with a broad smile on his freckled face. Brownie didn't fear or hate him any more. He couldn't have told why he didn't, but he didn't. He had a queer feeling that somehow all this adventure had something to do with friendliness on the part of Farmer Brown's Boy.

The Man on the Sandbox

THE TRAFFIC COP.

I KNOW it is a sin
For me to sit and grin
At him here;
But his comic opera hat
And his breeches and all that Are so queer.

Why do they fit him out
Like some one who's about
To explore,
In a climate where it's warm
And the animals that swarm,
At him roar?

But soon he will look grand
In his winter uni and Everything.
So, I often wonder why
They dress him like a guy
In the spring!

HOW COME?

We note that a recent photograph of distinguished citizens of South America does not include Luis Firpo. Can it be that they class Luis with the extinguished citizens?

The Argentine Ambassador is all right in a way; but he doesn't weigh as much as Luis.

The Yankees clinched the American League pennant on Sept. 23. The delay was due to the season opening a week later than usual.

See where the college athletes are out on the gridiron warming up for the football season.

A number of counterfeit red caps in imitation of the head gear worn by Tex Rickard's ushers were sold for $1 each. That's putting the "cap" in capital.

CONGRATULATIONS.

The host of friends of Pat O'Connor, former warm-up catcher for the Cardinals, now managing the Hartford, will be pleased to learn that his team won the pennant in the Eastern League. A pleasant time was had by all.

Pat probably wore out more pants on the bench and grass in the coaching box and warmed up more pitchers in the bull pen and behind the plate than any catcher before or since his time. He also caught a couple of games.

Plans are under way to make the St. Louis horse show a permanent institution. It's only a question of the horses holding out.

The outlook for a reduction of prices all along the line is not so dark. The electric companies are fighting the way.

The man on the sandbox says that the New York newspapers will celebrate the return of the striking pressmen with a coming-out party.

Falling of a match with either Dempsey or Firpo in the near future, Harry Wills will resume his regular occupation of toppling set-ups. The first number on the program will be Homer Smith of Kalamazoo, Mich.
